WILSON STATEMENT IS FATAL TO PEACE SAYS MR. PEPPER

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 12.—The utterances of Woodrow Wilson at this time may mean keeping the United States out of the World Court by rousing the animosities of those whose support otherwise may have been won, Senator George Wharton Pepper declared today.

"Five years ago the common weal for peace might have been conserved had we raised an international structure upon a foundation of a conference without committments. Under President Wilson's leadership, the structure was built upon the quicksand of covenated force," Senator Pepper said.

WALTON EXPECTS TO BE IMPEACHED BUT WILL FIGHT KLAN

Oklahoma City, Okla, Nov. 12.—"The fight will go on."

Seated in the modestly furnished living room of the executive mansion, Governor Jack Walton of Oklahoma City today pledged his future to war on the Ku Klux Klan, regardless of the outcome of the impeachment proceedings brought against him before the State Senate.

The suspended Governor expects to be impeached. His Counsel, however, may carry the issue to the United States Supreme Court

Already, although the House Board of Managers, acting as the prosecution, has completed its evidence in only two of the twenty-two counts being against him. But, Governor talks of the possibilities of the Senate court being against him. But, Governor or not, Walton says he will carry on the fight he has started against the Invisible Empire.

The hearing continued today with testimony of witnesses regarding Walton's purchase of his present home, and may drag out for a number of weeks. It was believed, however, that it will end abruptly. Once the prosecution satisfied itself that it has created sufficient weight of evidence against the deposed Governors, it can rest on any number of counts. The defense then has its turn before the vote of the Senate is taken. Twenty eight of the forty-two votes in the Senate are required for impeachment.

HIGH SCHOOL TEACHER MARRIED YESTERDAY

Prof Ray Laudenslager, teacher of History and Economics in our local High School and Miss Grace Cawley, daughter of Mr. R. D. Cagley, of Milton, Pa., were quietly married at the Lutheran parsonage on Sunday morning at 8 o'clock by the pastor, Rev. E. Ray Manser. The beautiful ring ceremony of the Lutheran church was used in uniting these two hearts as one. Prof. Laudenslager is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Laudenslager, of Selinsgrove, Pa., and since his coming here has made many friends who will join in wishing he and his bride a happy voyage over the sea of life.

CROWN PRINCE "AT HOME"

London, Nov. 12.—The former Crown Prince of Germany has arrived in Oels, Silesia, where his family were awaiting him at his castle, dispatches from Berlin said today.

LOCAL BOYS PUT UP A GREAT BATTLE AND WIN FROM THE BURG

P. H. S. bowed to C. H. S. Saturday, acknowledging a clean cut 25 to 7 defeat.

The locals found considerable trouble in getting under way, but making flashing spurts which usually netted a tally or forced the alien eleven back to their own 10-yard line, Clearfield's green machine out-gained and outfought the visitors during the entire game. Clearfield backs continually launched attacks which rushed the big Centre county line off its feet and forced them to give ground the whole game. Clearfield slowed up a little in the third period and the visitors, quick to take advantage of this, found a weakness in the attack until Capt Jones finally tallied for Philipsburg.

The burgers were unable to stop the smashing line thrusts of Dale and Norris, while Barnie, Wilson and Mitcheltree continually flanked the visitors' line for long runs. Philipsburg backs found considerable trouble in denting the locals' line, yet Bratton, the visitor star quarterback, skirted ends and dived tackles for gains. Dale, a second string fullback, thrilled the crowd by his playing late in the fourth period when he grabbed a burg pass batted down by Barnie and sprinted 33 yards to the Philipsburg goal line.

The locals then unleashed a flashy attack and soon sent Mitcheltree over on a short line buck. Barnie was unable to boot the ball for the extra point. His punting during the game was extra good, but his placement kicks and dropkicks failed.

In the second period Clearfield uncorked a series of plays and soon netted another score when Capt. Barnie was crossed. The try for point was no good when Barnie's kick went low Cleanfield started the second half with Barnie at the helm. Baily directed the Centre county team in Bratton's absence. The visitors netted a touchdown by the work of Trumble in the third period, Capt. Jones going around end for the score. He then added their last point by a nice dropkick. Clearfield got two more tallies in the last period when Mitch and Dale each scored.

Bratton and Ratowsky showed up well for the visitors, while Wilson and Dale featured Clearfield's attack, Wilson making several runs of 33, 32 and

U. S. COWARDLY SINCE THE WAR SAYS MR. WILSON

Former President In His First Talk To Public Since Retirement Is Still For the League.

HE SCORES FRANCE

Washington, Nov. 10.—Woodrow Wilson, addressing the American people, directly tonight for the first time since he left the White House, declared America's attitude after the World War was "deeply ignoble, cowardly and dishonorable."

France and Italy, Mr. Wilson also declared in a discussion of world affairs, have made "waste paper of the treaty of Versailles."

The former President said the only way in which the United States could show its true appreciation of the significance of Armistice Day, was by resolving to put self-interest away and to formulate and act upon the highest ideals of international policy.

Mr. Wilson spoke exactly five minutes into a radio instrument at his home here and his message was broadcasted to every section of the country.

Deplores Selfish Isolation.

"The anniversary of Armistice Day," he said, "should stir us to great exaltation of spirit because of the proud recollection that it was our day, a day above those early days of that never-to-be-forgotten November, which lifted the world to the high levels of vision and achievement upon which the great war for democracy and right was fought and won, although the stimulating memories of that happy time of triumph are forever marred and embittered for us by the shameful fact that when the victory was won—won, be it remembered, chiefly by the indomitable spirit and valiant sacrifices of our own inconquerable soldiers—we turned our backs upon our associates and refused to bear any responsible part in the administration of peace, or the firm and permanent establishment of the results of the war—won at so terrible a cost of life and treasure—and withdrew into a sullen and selfish isolation which is deeply ignoble because manifestly cowardly and dishonor-

MANY AUTO ACCIDENTS OVER WEEK END

Edward A. Bigleman Who Lives On Woodland Road In Critical Condition; Struck by Automobile

Was Waiting To Step Aboard Jitney When a Car Driven by Woodland Man Struck Him.

MAN STRUCK HERE

This community was the scene of quite a bunch of automobile accidents and near accidents Saturday evening and early Sunday morning.

The most serious of the lot occurred about 6 o'clock Saturday evening on the Woodland-Clearfield State road, just beyond the top of Barrett hill. The victim was Edward Bigleman, aged 35 years, who resides on the right hand side of the State road at the point mentioned

Mr. Bigleman had come out of his home and was standing along the roadway waiting to flag one of the Fullington jitneys for the purpose of coming to town, when Richard Rogers, who conducts the hotel at Woodland and traveling from Clearfield towards Woodland, came dashing along in a Buick car and ran right into him Mr Bigelman noticed the car coming but thought it would pass him by until just before reaching him it appeared to swerve toward him and though he was able to escape the bumpers of the rapidly traveling car, was struck a terrific blow

The injured man was taken into his home in front of which the accident occurred and a call sent out for physicians and the ambulance of the Clearfield Hospital. Mr. Bigleman was removed to the hospital, where his physician, Dr. Lovar F. Stewart found he was suffering from serious internal injuries and injuries and contusions to the head and body

At noon today Mr Bigleman was holding his own very nicely but his condition is very critical

Fred Hooverman Arrested

Along about 11:45 o'clock Saturday night Fred or "Fritz" Hooverman who is employed about the Paige Hotel and also conducts a "shine parlor" at McLaughlin's barber shop while attempting to cross Third street at the corner of Reed, was struck by the car driven by L. L. Graham who was on his way to his home in the Fourth Ward.

A car was parked alongside the Paige Hotel and Mr Hooverman stepped out from behind this car directly in the path of Mr Graham's car. The driver made every effort to avoid hitting Hooverman swinging his car into Reed street and running up over the curb and across the sidewalk, fetching up against the front porch of the Daugherty residence on the corner and wrecking one end of the porch.

Hooverman was struck a glancing blow as the machine swerved into Reed street and was skidded across the brick and landed with his head against the curb on the opposite side. The ambulance was summoned and Fritz was taken to the Clearfield Hospital where it was found that beyond a rather severe scalp wound and some bruises he was alright and will be able to be about in a day or two.

Bowled Over Fire Plug

At Third and Market

The fire plug at the corner of Third and Market streets, which has served as a shield for the Westover now the Johnston building, and saved the lives of pedestrians and bystanders at this corner several times in the past, again gave up its life and the pretty "puller" beauty a little of duty.

About 1:40 o'clock Sunday morning light sleepers in that section were aroused from their slumbers by an awful crash, while the instantaneous actions of flying pieces of iron bouncing here and there over the concrete sidewalk led them to believe every safe in the neighborhood had been blown up by yeggs.

However, early arrivals at the scene discovered that only one measly fire plug had gone to pieces in the

DUBOIS BOY DIES AS RESULT OF PUTTING KEROSENE ON FIRE

Albert Zimmerman aged nine years died on Sunday morning at 12:15 o'clock in the DuBois Hospital, the result of an accident at the Zimmerman home shortly after nine o'clock on Saturday evening. The father of the boy was at work and no one was in the house, except the lad, at the time of the accident. Albert had been outside, and when he came in saw that the fire was low, and in order to heat the room, he poured kerosine oil on the fire. There was about a pint of oil in the can, and the flames leaped into the receptacle. An explosion followed and the can bursted, flames caping over the lad. He was badly burned about the face and body, but ran across the street to a neighbor, where his condition was seen to be serious. He was taken to the DuBois Hospital and died at the above stated time. He is survived by his father, five sisters and one brother. The lad was taken to the Quinn morgue, following death, and will be taken to his home today. Funeral services will be held this afternoon in the St. Joseph church and interment will be made in the St. Joseph cemetery.

IS NOW 80 YEARS YOUNG

We inadvertantly neglected to mention the fact that our old friend ex-Sheriff James Mahaffey celebrated his arrival one day last week, at the four score mile post on life's journey and is now 80 years young. The genial ex-sheriff enters the home stretch feeling like a "quarter horse" and bids fair to remain in the race for many years to come, and that he may be privileged to do so is the wish of his legion of friends throughout this section of Pennsylvania.

YES, WE HAVE NO BANANAS.

Neither did we have any fire. When the fire whistles and sirens let loose at eleven o'clock today a lot of fellows forgot the war ended five years ago today at that hour and started to hunt the fire.

Most of them are awake now.

FINE WEATHER IS RESPONSIBLE FOR WHISPERED REPLY TO R. C. ROLL CALL

Owing to the fine weather yesterday the Red Cross Roll Call canvassers found a great many people away from home when they called at the houses. The results secured were therefore considerably less than hoped for and less than was obtained last year.

There are undoubtedly many people who desire to join and in order that everyone may have an opportunity, the committee in charge has decided to make it known that subscriptions will be received at any of the three banks this week.

The work of the Red Cross is too valuable a factor in the community to be allowed to fail. If for any reason you were not seen by the solicitors yesterday remember that your contribution is needed and will be gladly received by the committee through any of the banks.

SMALL ARMY TO BE IN HUNTING TOGS ON THIS FINE DAY

Due to the fact that this a general holiday, it is expected that the bunnies and pheasants will suffer a terrible slaughter. Nearly everyone who is able to tote a gun had made arrangements to take to the woods, and it is expected that the killing will be heavy.

The hunting should be good at the present time, as it has been dry for the past two or three days. During the real wet weather of last week, few hunters were out and the animals and birds enjoyed a breathing spell, but any species of the woods that is now in season will be lucky to get through today.

The hunting thus far has been below the average of former years, notwithstanding that it was claimed that birds and rabbits were much more plentiful.

STUNT FLYER KILLED WHEN HIS AIRPLANE NOSE DIVES TO EARTH

Chicago, Nov. 11.—Lieutenant Benjamin McBride, 26, of Selfride Field, Mt. Clemens, Michigan, was killed during an Armistice Day air meet at Asburn flying field here today when his pursuit plane, flying about 135 miles per hour, plunged into the ground from a height of about 15 feet.

Lieutenant McBride was flying low over the field, while thousands watched, thrilling the spectators with the stunt known as "jazzing the clouds." While flying only 15 or 20 feet from the ground he tried to rise but instead the plane plunged into the ground. The lieutenant was removed from the wreckage and started for a hospital but died on the way.

NATIONAL COMMANDER AT SCRANTON

Wilkes Barre, Pa., Nov. 12.—Wyoming Valley welcomed John R. Quinn, newly elected National Commander of the American Legion as the highlight of the Armistice Day celebration in this section today.

Following a reception and parade in his honor, Quinn will go to Scranton to attend a banquet this evening. Several officers of the army and marine corps accompanied the Legion chief.

NOTICE LEGION MEN

Do not forget the big time at the Dimeling Ball Room this evening at eight o'clock. Come whether you sent in your cards or not. There will be a place for you. We know you forgot to send in the card.

TWO MORE LOSE LICENSE

The State Highway Department on Saturday last gave out a list of 128 automobile drivers whose license to drive a machine in Pennsylvania had been taken from them.

Among the number appeared the names of two Clearfield county men, Anthony Luke, of Morrisdale, and H. C. Mooney, of Grampian.

More should lose them.

JOHN WOODS KILLS BLACK BEAR WHICH WEIGHS OVER 200

John Woods of the firm of Woods Bros., who make Keystone ice cream, slipped down the river to the vicinity of Birch Island the latter part of last week, ostensibly for the purpose of bird hunting, and came back on Friday evening with a fine specimen of black bear. There were five in the party but John assures us that he was all alone when he spied Bruin, or Bruin spied him, we hardly know which is correct, but at any rate, two well directed shots at close to three hundred yards brought the big brute to the ground, one of the shots entering the neck and the other the rib back of the shoulder.

The bear is a beautiful specimen weighing 210 pounds, and has a beautiful coat of fur. It has been on display at the People's Meat Market, where it drew large crowds all Saturday evening. John is envied by all the hunters now as it is not often that a bear comes to this town.

BRUTALITY TO WIFE BRINGS A QUICK TRIP TO CO. JAIL TO SERVE DESERVED SENTENCE

John, better known as "Pammy Kline, who, according to the police, knocked his wife unconscious with a bottle at their home in the Lobel flats Friday night last and then threw a bucket of water on the poor woman to bring her to, continuing to abuse and upbraid the poor unfortunate woman after she regained consciousness, was taken before Judge Bell by Chief of Police McMullen Saturday and was sent down to jail.

Kline, who entered a plea of guilty to violation of the liquor law several months ago, was at liberty on a suspended sentence. Neighbors say he has been abusing his wife shamefully at times and that the jail is the proper place for him.

SANBORN SHEIK IS PAROLED AND TOLD TO SIN NO MORE

David Phillips, the alleged Sanborn sheik, who got himself into a peck of trouble, also Tom Lowell's jail, because of lack of respect for the 18th Amendment and his inability to make the ladies quit loving him, was paroled for the remainder of his jail sentence by Judge Bell Friday.

Phillips was sentenced in May last to pay a fine of $400 and costs and serve twelve months in jail for violation of the liquor law and because he neglected to keep a date made with the court and district attorney for sentence.

His parole now is conditioned on his moving his family out of Clearfield county, living a blameless life for the coming three years, and payment the fine and costs within the next fifteen months.

America's Game Birds Fast Disappearing Despite Millions Spent for Protection

"America's effort to preserve its game bird supply has proved a failure," declares T. Gilbert Pearson, president of the National Association of Audubon Societies, New York. "Many species are declining in numbers with such rapidity that undoubtedly they are as much in peril as have the antelope and the bison."

Lack of proper public sentiment, Mr. Pearson charges, is primarily responsible for disappearance of the wild turkey which once ranged the country, the popular ruffed grouse, the cheery bob-white which bird lovers are seeking everywhere to protect, the prairie chicken, the many species of shore birds, and other game birds.

"The far-ringing platitude, 'this is a free country,' has had disastrous effects on our supply of wild life," writes Mr. Pearson in an article printed in The World's Work. "Our legislatures have declared and our supreme courts have upheld the declaration that the birds and game are public owned and that they do not become private property until reduced to possession.

"Millions of dollars have been spent and are being expended in employing game wardens, developing and maintaining game farms, making moving pictures, giving lectures and engaging in general propaganda for game protection. All this is thought necessary because the people of the country, especially the six million gunners who went afield last year, are not willing to deny themselves the recreational and gastronomic pleasures to be derived from transferring the game birds from live public ownership to dead private ownership.

T. GILBERT PEARSON, PRES. NAT'L ASSN OF AUDUBON SOCIETIES

Better Protection in Europe.

"In many parts of Europe the game birds native to those countries exist in such numbers as to astonish an American who for the first time becomes personally acquainted with conditions that there exist. The protection of game in [illegible] is based on funda-mentally different principles. In much of Europe every land owner on whose estate there is found grouse, partridge, quail, capercaillie or other game has a vital personal interest in seeing that those birds are protected. They are a source of income to him just as are his domestic fowl or cattle. He therefore sees to it that only the surplus birds are killed and at all times jealously guards a sufficient breeding stock. The 'poacher' who is captured on these lands has a hard time of it.

"Here it is different. In New York State, for example, if a man owns a farm on which there are quail or grouse, and a hunting license, the farmer cannot keep the gunner from trawersing his lands in killing the birds, unless he first goes to the necessary expense and trouble of erecting trespass signs, or has made an application to the State for permission to make his lands a 'bird sanctuary.' Thus under our system game birds rarely are a source of income to the land owners on which they are found. Agricultural interests are already deprived very largely of the valuable service rendered by these birds, in destroying grasshoppers, beetles, and other injurious insects.

A National Issue.

"Wild fowl appear to be holding their numbers better than many of our other American game birds, but with the constant draining of marshes, the increasing number of our hunting population, and the great facilities for transportation coupled with effectiveness of modern fire arms, one cannot speak with assurance of their future.

"After twenty years of daily experience in the field of bird protection, it is the opinion of the writer that the only possible chance of bringing back our injured game birds and insuring the future of the bob-white and the water-fowl is by the establishment of numerous bird sanctuaries and by inaugurating an intensive campaign of education in which the economic and sentimental values of the birds shall be insistently stressed.

"This campaign must be carried on by scientific and public spirited societies, institutions, and organizations of every character, by the scientific and especially the popular literary magazines, and by the daily and weekly press. At the present time such work is left almost entirely to one Government Bureau, some state departments of conservation, a handful of societies and a comparatively few individuals. It must be made a national issue.

"If we as a nation do not move in this way, the game is going to continue its course of rapidly diminishing until game species are gone forever. Conservationists are fearful of the policy and have flying game birds become private and not public property? If so, maybe this will save them."

made a sh of the flying autoist and after looking over the fragments all returned to "the hay."

The commotion was caused by Harry McGarry, of New Millport, who attempted to make the turn from Market into Third street in his Nash car and found the fire plug confronting him when he fain would straighten away into Third street. The fire plug was smashed off even with the brick walk, pieces of the iron being shot down Third street for forty feet, while one or two fragments smashed some of the glass in the door of the Workman's meat market on the corner. A deluge was avoided only because the water pipe was bent over instead of being broken off.

Near Accident at Pennsy Station

Saturday evening while a crowd of people were standing on the platform at the Pennsy station awaiting the arrival of the 6 28 train, a motorist apparently in an awful hurry, in attempting to turn from Third street into Reed street cut off too short and ran his car up onto the sidewalk. He was on the walk with all four wheels and narrowly missed the mail box near the curb as he rolled back onto the street.

Collision On Daisy Street Sunday Afternoon

About 4 o'clock as Frank Boyle, of East End, was coming up Daisy street, a car being driven toward Philipsburg banged into him in front of Baroni's store and badly crippled a rear fender for him. The driver of the car told Mr. Boyle his name was W. N. Dutra, of Philipsburg, a traveling salesman who had been stopping at the Leonard House for a few days.

"This must always be a source of deep mortification to us, and we shall inevitably be forced by the moral obligations of freedom and honor to retrieve that fatal error and assume once more the role of courage, self-respect and helpfulness which every true American must wish to believe to be our true part in the affairs of the world.

Treaty Made Waste Paper.

"That we should thus have done a great wrong to civilization, and at one of the most critical turning points in the history of mankind, is the more to be deplored, because every anxious year that has followed has made the exceeding need for such service as we might have rendered more and more manifest and more pressing, as demoralizing circumstances which we might have controlled have gone from bad to worse until now—as if to furnish a sort of sinister climax—France and Italy between them have made waste paper of the Treaty of Versailles, and the whole field of international relationships is in perilous confusion.

"The affairs of the world can be set straight only by the firmest and most determined exhibition of the will to lead and make right prevail.

"Happily, the present situation of affairs in the world affords us an opportunity to retrieve the past and to render to mankind the incomparable service of proving that there is at least one great and powerful nation which can put aside programs of self-interest, and devote itself to practicing and establishing the highest ideals of disinterested service, and the constant maintenance of exalted standards of conscience and of right.

"The only way in which we can nificance of Armistice Day is by renificance of Armistic eDay is by resolving to put self-interest away and once more formulate and act upon the highest ideals and purposes of international policy. Thus, and only thus, can we return to the true traditions of America."

CELEBRATED 76TH BIRTHDAY

Mrs. A. B. Leavy, a life-long and highly respected resident of Clearfield, celebrated the 76th anniversary of her birth with a family dinner party at her home on South Second street yesterday. All her children and grandchildren were present and the day was very much enjoyed by all.

Coughs that keep you awake at night can be stopped quickly with this simple household remedy.

wastes your strength so that in the morning you feel more tired than when you went to bed. Get rid of it before it causes you more serious trouble. For more than fifty years, thousands of families have kept Dr. King's New Discovery in the medicine chest to break up coughs. It does it naturally, quickly, by stimulating the mucous membranes to throw off the secretions that are clogging them. Harmlessly, and without any bad after effects, it stops the violent throat and lung spasms and gives the irritation a chance to heal. It has an agreeable taste. All druggists.

Pay no attention to forecasts of mild winter, severe winter or predictions of weather conditions for long periods in the future, in advance of the Weather Bureau at Washington

A prediction from New England that the "coming winter will be the coldest and snowiest winter in history" in that section of the country has led the government officials to disclaim many responsibility for the forecast. The Weather Bureau does not attempt to issue predictions even of a general character for weeks or months in advance. The subject of forecasting for seasons or considerable periods ahead has long engaged the attention of meteorological scientists, but thus far, weather experts say, no laws of sequence have been discovered whereby long-range forecasts of a reliable character can be made.

Reputable scientists throughout the world agree that the science has not advanced to the point where that can be done. Thus the government experts throw down the predictions of "goose bone weather prophets" and the forecasts which appear in almanacs and calendars a year in advance.

Here are 16 production records that have been established in industry during the last few months:

The largest pig iron production.
The largest cotton production.
The largest steel ingot production.
The largest crude oil production
The largest automobile and truc production.
The largest residential production.
The largest construction of locomotives
The largest volume of mail order sales
The largest volume of retail sales
The largest volume of railroad car loadings.

Important changes that have taken place in the United States since the pre-war year of 1913 are:

The population of the United States has increased 14,000,000 of people, with their enlarged requirements.

The annual national income has increased from $34,000,000,000 to $50,000,000,000.

The aggregate savings deposits have increased from $6,000,000,000 to $14,000,000,000.

We wonder at the scarcity of small game reported in this section thus far this season. Still it is not to be wondered at. The records in County Treasurer Rumberger's office show that more than 12,000 hunters were licensed in Clearfield county last year, while the total for 1923 passed the 11,000 mark on Saturday last. Then, too, the automobile and improved roads have made Clearfield county game covers easily available to half the population of the state.

TRINITY CHURCH EVENTS

Bible school took a very definite advance Sunday, which was not only in attendance—from 384 to 461, and in offering from $19.74 to $25.65, but more especially in the devotion to the study period. Junior League had unusual interesting exercises in telling Bible stories and reviewing Christ's life. Annabel Walther gave a pleasing account of the story of Abraham and Lot.

The morning congregation exceeded greatly the attendance of last Sunday's, especially so in the number of out-of-town visitors. The exposition was from Amos 5-4 "Seeking God." The Armistice Day meditation was an appeal to highly resolve against war and to decry the glorification of war. In the evening, Isaiah 1:6-9 furnished the Scripture for a study of the side extent of the Gospel and the changes it must effect and has been producing in life and the world.

The vocal music in both services touched a high point. In chorus selection, solo by Mrs. Stouffer and quartette appropriateness of theme was combined with excellence of rendition. The chorus was filled up and strongly balanced.

Rev. Joseph E. Gearhart, who held a goodly service at Mount Zion in the afternoon, participated throughout the day in shool and worship exercises.

This week's events. Wednesday, mid week congregational meeting, followed by regular meeting Sunday School Board. Thursday from 5 to 7 Ladies serve sauer kraut supper, most attractive menu put out this year by the Aid Society, 60c. Sunday 18th Holy Communion.

Rev. Hauser has been called to DuBois for the funeral of Mrs. Segerberg today.

Deserts Not Without Water.

The vast stretches lying between the Sierra Nevada and California and the eastern Cordilleran ranges (Rocky mountains) in the United States, and between the Pacific ocean and the eastern Sierra Madre of Mexico, constitute the great American desert, is superficially waterless. Its plains are usually barren of surface water save for an occasional saline lagoon. Notwithstanding the apparent scarcity of water, one of the most remarkable features of the great American desert is that water has been secured often in apparently impossible places and in quantities that have made possible the existence of cities and industries, says the Detroit News.

Progress.

Progress in human history has been based on the destruction of barriers. If this science has found a way to span the seas and bridge the continents, philosophy has made plains of thought on which men of every race may meet together in harmony of faith and purpose.—Walter B. Young.

Vigorous Old Age

WHY separate youth and old age with a deep and ever-widening abyss?

The bloom of youth and the hardy, ruddy glow of Old Age—sixteen and seventy—should be separated only by the span of years and not by varying differences of physical wholesomeness.

There's no old age in the grasp of all. S S S brings that hale and hearty feeling back with a rush. Rich red blood is the greatest enemy of weakening health, undermining Old Age. S S S builds Red Blood Cells. Rich, red blood coursing through your veins sweeps away impurities that retard the proper functioning of your system. Old Age—once a dreaded agony becomes a vigorous, enjoyable, care free time of life.

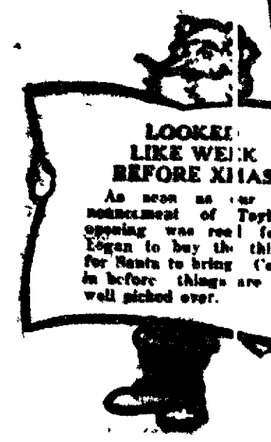

S S S is made of carefully selected herbs and barks—scientifically prepared and proportioned. Welcome Old Age when it comes. Be ready to withstand the attacks of diseases that harbor in its wake. Meet Old Age with a hearty handshake. A handshake that speaks of well being and vigorous blood making, red blood constituents. S S S is your best friend when Old Age is seen heading the corner. Get a bottle and drive care and worry away. All leading drug stores carry it. The large size is the more economical.

DAVID BRINGS HOME THE BACON!

OUR TRADE WITH EUROPE AND WITH THE WORLD

Manufactures form a steadily increasing percentage of our exports especially to the non-European world.

September trade of the United States with Europe and with the world as a whole shows gratifying gains and this is especially true in the figures of our commerce with Europe. The September imports from that continent exceed by over $4,000,000 those of the same month of last year, and the exports thereto are $37,000,000 in excess of those of September, 1922. The imports from that continent show an increase of about 5% in dollar value and the exports thereto are 22% greater than those of September of the preceding year. Merchandise sent to that grand division in September form 53% of the total exports as against 52.6% in September of last year and 50% in the twelve months ending with September 1923.

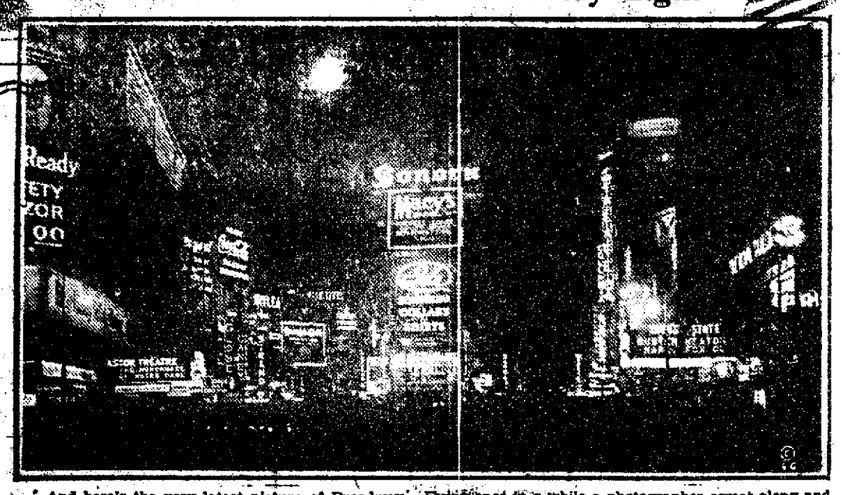

Europe which needs our foodstuffs and raw manufacturing material has always been says the Trade Record of The National City Bank of New York, our biggest customer, though the share of the total exports sent to other grand divisions has steadily increased with the growth in our exports of manufactures, which are especially in demand in the non-European world. Prior to 1900 Europe took from 75 to 80 per cent of our total exports while all other parts of the world took from 20 to 25 per cent.

With the enormous increase in our exports of manufactures, which jumped from $485,000,000 in 1900 to $1,732,000,000 in the calendar year 1922, it is quite natural that the per cent of the exports sent to the non-manufacturing world should show an increase and the share sent to manufacturing Europe a corresponding decrease. So it turns out that the share of our total exports which went to North America other than the United States was in the calendar year 1922 24% against 13½% in the fiscal year 1900, to South America about 6% against less than 3%, to Asia 12% against less than 5% in 1900. As a consequence of this increase in the exports of manufactures it is quite natural that the percentage which manufacturing Europe took of our total exports should show a decline and thus the share of our total exports sent to Europe stood at 54% in 1922 against 60% in the fiscal year 1913, though the total value of merchandise sent to that continent in 1922 was far in excess of that of 1913, standing in dollar values at $2,083,000,000 in 1922 against $1,479,000,000 in 1913.

The big growth in our exports of manufactures which has changed the percentage of our exports to the various grand divisions, adds the Trade Record, can only be fully appreciated when we compare the totals of the current year with those of the pre-war period. The latest figures of our exports by great groups of articles indicate that the value of manufactures exported in the calendar year 1923 will exceed $2,000,000,000 against $1,100,000,000 in the year immediately preceding the war, $475,000,000 in 1900, $188,000,000 in 1890, and $122,000,000 in 1880, when Europe was taking 86% of our total exports and the balance of the world only 14%.

With the big stocks of manufacturers which we are able to offer to purchasers abroad, the non-manufacturing world now takes 45% of our total exports against 14% in 1880 when we began the enlargement of our production of manufactures for the export trade. Manufactures form from 75 to 90 per cent of our exports to the non-manufacturing countries, while manufacturing material and foodstuffs form the bulk of the exports to manufacturing Europe.

Progress Editorial For Women

A LETTER A WEEK
By FLORENCE DAVIES

Perhaps because he is a man of few words, people call President Coolidge cold and aloof.

But those who know him well remind us that words may be only chatter.

For instance, a veteran political reported writing of him in a November magazine says: "It is right" to set down this fact, that Calvin Coolidge wrote to his step mother personal letters, not less than once a week, always.—Since his step-mother's death (1920) he has written, not less often, personal letters to his father. It is right to add this; the two Coolidge boys, by their father's teaching and example, write not less than once a week to their grandfather."

This evidence is offered to prove that underneath the President's seeming aloofness, there is a great depth of affection and loyalty.

But the story means something for itself. It means that President Coolidge believes there are some things in life which count, some things which are fundamental and which one must attend to; some things for which one always has time in spite of being Governor or Vice-President or President of the United States ;and one of these things is a man's family.

It is easy enough to take the other side of the argument. It is easy to call a family a nuisance, to point out that it interferes with one's freedom; that it is often difficult and temperamental ,and often annoys by its excess of zeal in directing us how to order our affairs.

But all these things are mere pin pricks. They have nothing to do with the fact that a man's family belongs to him and he to them, and that, willy nilly, like it or not, he is bone of their bone, flesh of their flesh and that common loyalty demands that he regard their interests as his own and cling to the ideals and traditions for which they have stood

People who neglect things which are essentially their own are shallow people who live in a shallow world, never develop enough reality or depth to take root in deep soil. They aren't very real.

President Coolidge isn't that kind of a man. He may be president of the most powerful nation in the world, but he isn't too busy to write to his father. His sons are not too much obsessed with football or movies or school entertainments to get acquainted with their grandfather and then to keep that friendship alive. In the days to come that grandfather is going to mean something more to those boys than an empty name. He is going to be a living personality who has become a part of their lives. Most of us think we are too busy for these softer things. "Now that John has such a big job, (John probably having been promoted to be superintendent of a button factory,) he can't be expected to write letters home, he leaves all that for the women folks." That is the way we explain it. But Jo in with his button factory isn't any busier than President Coolidge. And all the buttons in the world aren't quite as important as happy memories and close associations with those we love. Suppose we check up by ,the "letter home" test and see who is the more cold and indifferent, our few England Presidents of few words, or some of us who have time to chatter with everyone but no time for the things that we count all down the years.

The Spicer

We gave some perfunctory attention to the landscape, which is forever only beautiful to those who admire and, and to them perhaps the most beautiful in England. For here is the body of the great chalk spider who straddles over our island—whose legs are the south downs and the north downs and the Cotteswolds, and the tips of whose four pads rest at Dover and Dover. He is a clean creature, who grows as few trees as he can, and those few in tidy clumps, and he loves to be tickled by quickly flowing streams. He is pimpled all over with earthworks, for from the beginning of time men have fought for the privilege of standing on him, and the whole of our temples is built upon his back.—E. M. Forster, in "The Colonial Question."

THE FLAG: HOW TO DISPLAY IT HOW TO RESPECT IT

ON Flag Day, June 14th, representatives of 68 organizations met in Washington for a conference [illegible] and conducted under the auspices of The A[merican] Legion to draft an authentic code of flag etiquette. [illegible] code drafted by that conference is printed on this [illegible] following pages together with diagrams illustrat[ing] [illegible] of the rules. While the rules adopted by t[illegible] have no official government sanction, nevertheless th[ey repre]sent the authoritative opinion of the principal pat[riotic ...]ties of the United States and of Army and Navy [illegible] are binding on all of the organizations which took part [in the] gathering. The conference constituted itself a [illegible] [illegible] so that modifications in the rules can be made [illegible] desirable. The rules as given below are [illegible] [illegible] draft of the code as brought out of [the conference] [illegible] Legion post will find the rules and diagrams [illegible] to the notice of school pupils and citizens [illegible].

THERE are certain fundamental rules of heraldry which, if understood generally, would indicate the proper method of displaying the flag. The matter becomes a very simple one if it is kept in mind that the National Flag represents the living country and is itself considered as a living thing. The union of the flag is the honor point; the right arm is the sword arm, and therefore the point of danger and hence the place of honor.

1. The Flag should be displayed only from sunrise to sunset, or between such hours as may be designated by proper authority. It should be displayed on national and state holidays and on historic and special occasion. The Flag should always be hoisted briskly and lowered slowly and ceremoniously.

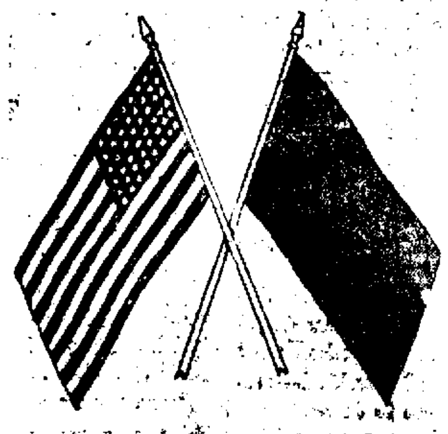

2. When carried in a procession with another flag or flags, the Flag of the United States should be either on the marching right, i.e., the Flag's own right, or when there is a line of other flags the Flag of the United States may be in front of the center of that line.

3. When displayed with another flag against a wall from crossed staffs, the Flag of the United States should be on the right, the Flag's own right, and its staff should be in front of the staff of the other flag.

4. When a number of flags are grouped and displayed from staffs, the Flag of the United States should be in the center or at the highest point of the group. (See diagram, top next column.)

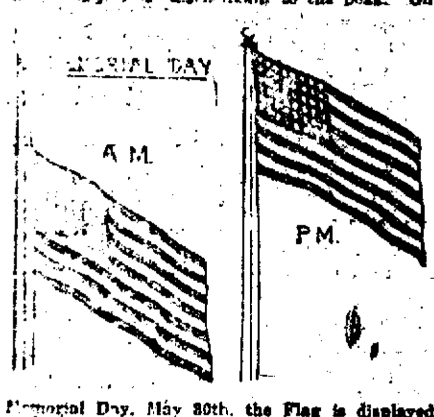

5. When flags of States or cities or pennants of societies are flown on the same halyard with the Flag of the United States, the National Flag [illegible] a staff it should [illegible] right.

[illegible] used in unveiling a statue or monu[ment] [illegible] Flag should not be allowed to fall to [the gr]ound but should be carried aloft to wave

[illegible] at half staff, the Flag is first [hoisted to the] peak and then lowered to the [half staff] position, but before lowering the Flag [for the] day it is raised again to the peak. On

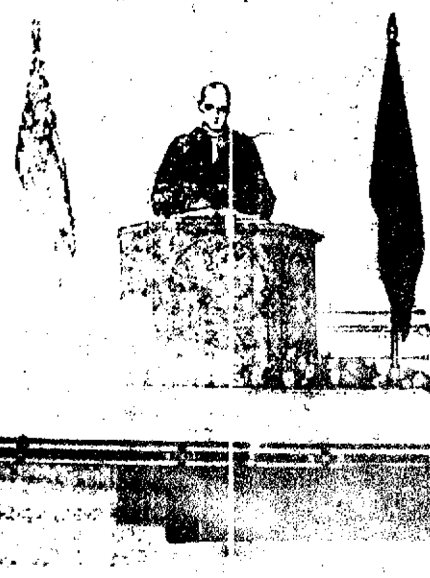

Memorial Day, May 30th, the Flag is displayed at half staff from sunrise until noon and at full staff from noon until sunset, for the Nation lives [and] the Flag is the symbol of the living Nation.

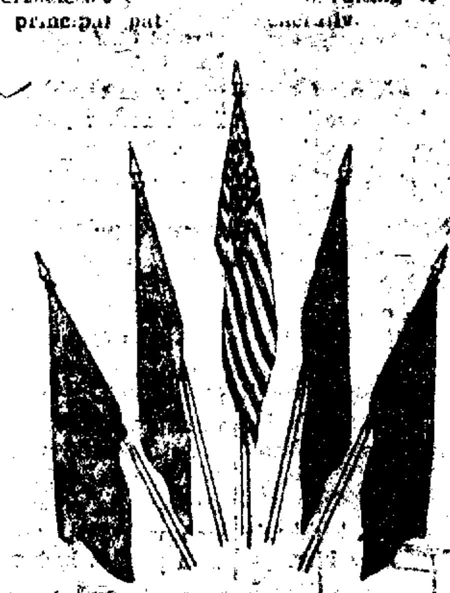

[When] used to cover a casket the Flag [should] be placed [so th]at the union [is at the] head and [over] the left shoulder. The Flag should not be lowered into the grave nor allowed to touch the ground. The casket should be carried [illegible]

[W]hen the Flag is displayed in church it [should] be [fro]m a staff placed on the congrega[tion's right] as they face the clergyman. The should always be at the peak. When flown from adjacent staffs the Flag of the United States should be hoisted first. No flag or pennant should be placed above or to the right of the Flag of the United States.

6. When flags of two or more nations are displayed they should be flown from separate staffs of the same height and the flags should be of approximately equal size. (International usage forbids the display of the flag of one nation above that of another nation in time of peace.)

7. When the Flag is displayed from a staff projecting horizontally or at an angle from the window sill, balcony, or front of building, the union of the Flag should go clear to the head of the staff unless the Flag is at half mast.

[illegible] When the Flag of the United States is displayed in a manner other than by being flown from a staff it should be displayed flat, whether indoors or out. When displayed [illegible] service flag, the state flag, or other flag should be at the left of the congregation. If in the chancel, the Flag of the United States should be placed on the clergyman's right as he faces the congregation and other flags on his left.

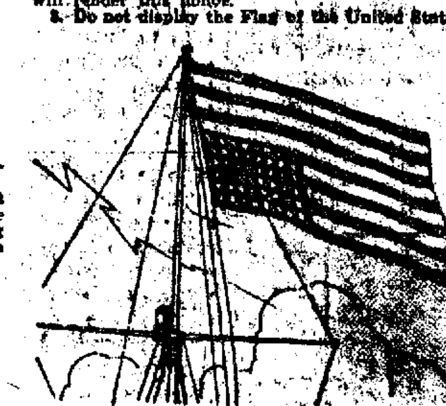

15. When the Flag is in such a condition that it is no longer a fitting emblem for display it should not be cast aside or used in any way that might be viewed as disrespectful to the national colors, but should be destroyed as a whole, privately, preferably by burning or by some other method in harmony with the reverence and respect we owe to the emblem representing our country.

CAUTIONS

1. Do not permit disrespect to be shown to the Flag of the United States.

2. Do not dip the Flag of the United States to any person or any thing. The regimental color, state flag, organization or institutional flag will render this honor.

3. Do not display the Flag of the United States with the union down except as a signal of distress.

4. Do not place any other flag or pennant

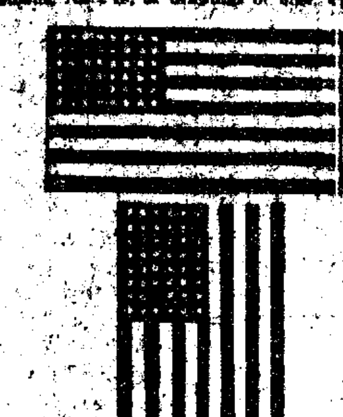

above or to the right of the Flag of the United States.

5. Do not let the Flag of the United States touch the ground or trail in the water.

6. Do not place any object or emblem of any kind on or above the Flag of the United States.

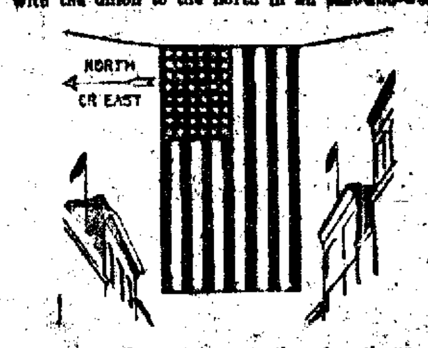

7. Do not use the Flag as drapery in any form whatever. Use bunting of blue, white and red.

either horizontally or vertically against a wall, the union should be uppermost and to the Flag's own right, i.e., to the observer's left. When displayed in a window it should be displayed the same way, that is, with the union or blue field to the left of the observer in the street. When festoons, rosettes, or drapings of blue, white and red are desired, bunting should be used, but never the Flag.

9. When displayed over the middle of the street, as between buildings, the Flag of the United States should be suspended vertically with the union to the north in an east-and-west street or to the east in a north-and-south street.

10. When used on a speaker's platform, the Flag should be displayed above and behind the speaker. It should never be used to cover the speaker's desk nor to drape over the front of

8. Do not fasten the Flag in such manner as will permit it to be easily torn.

9. Do not drape the Flag over the hood, top, sides or back of a vehicle, or of a railroad train or boat. When the Flag is displayed on a motor car, the staff should be affixed firmly to the chassis or clamped to the radiator cap.

10. Do not display the Flag on a float in a parade except from a staff.

11. Do not use the Flag as a covering for a ceiling.

12. Do not use the Flag as a portion of a costume or of an athletic uniform. Do not embroider it upon cushions or handkerchiefs or print it on paper napkins or boxes.

13. Do not put lettering of any kind upon the Flag.

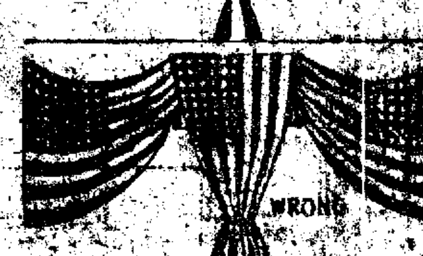

14. Do not use the Flag in any form of advertising nor fasten an advertising sign to a pole from which the Flag of the United States is flying.

15. Do not display, use or store the Flag in such a manner as will permit it to be easily soiled or damaged.

PROPER USE OF BUNTING

BUNTING of the national colors should be used for covering a speaker's desk, draping over the front of a platform and for decoration in general. Bunting should be arranged with the blue above, the white in the middle and the red below.

SALUTE TO THE FLAG

DURING the ceremony of hoisting or lowering the Flag or when the Flag is passing in a parade or in a review, all persons present should face the Flag, stand at attention and salute. Those present in uniform should render the right-hand salute. When not in uniform, men should remove the headdress with the right hand and hold it at the left shoulder. Women should salute by placing the right hand over the heart. The salute to the Flag in the moving column is rendered at the moment the Flag passes.

When the National Anthem is played those present in uniform should salute at the first note of the anthem, retaining this position until the last note of the anthem. When not in uniform, men should remove the headdress and hold it as in the salute to the Flag. Women should render the salute as to the Flag. When there is no Flag displayed, all should face toward the music.

MRS. PINCHOT SAYS WOMEN PUT GIFFORD WHERE HE IS TODAY

New York, Nov. 10.—Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, addressing the meeting of the League for Political Education at Town Hall today, declared that without the aid of the women voters of Pennsylvania the old Republican organization of Penrose could never have been unseated. It was the defeat of the machine, she said, which brought about new conditions and incidentally made her husband chief executive.

"The women of Pennsylvania had a very real share in the political upheaval of that State—an upheaval which annihilated at one blow the power of a machine that had hitherto been considered absolutely impregnable.

"'Clean House at Harrisburg,' was the slogan—and, as a battle cry (however short of romance and chivalry it may have been) it at least had the merit of rallying together the force of righteousness. Without the women, victory would have been impossible. We have plenty of facts to prove that statement, at any rate. They came out in great numbers with the utmost courage and determination.

'Indeed, in one or two counties in the very beginning when the fight looked utterly hopeless, the women started the ball rolling and for the first few weeks kept at it nearly single-handed. In all cases eventually, however, men and women worked side by side. There were no woman's committes as such. I am already insisting upon this point, because I think it is of the utmost importance.

Women's Vote Big Factor

"In Pennsylvania today the women are a real factor in the political life of the State—more so, perhaps, than in any other States—unless we except New Jersey. They have had the courage and the skill to know what they wanted in political life; they have demonstrated their capacity for leadership; they have known how to unite moral fervor with political skill—a very rare combination and one which I can assure you is literally irresistible.

"The primary victory last spring marked a definite step forward in women's political activities. Women outside of the State have turned to Pennsylvania with keen interest and amazement because they saw actually happening there what many of us had always contended, namely, that a definite contribution could be made by women who were willing to go inside the party and work and fight there for the things that woman want.

"Hitherto, in other States, the women who had affiliated themselves with parties had, to a certain extent at least, lost the fine edge of their leadership. They had tended to be swamped by the very size and weight of the machine of which they were a part—content to "go along" without attempting any definite or effective fight for the principles in which they believe, and which they were in politics to put over.

In view of the questions relating to politics and public life Governor Pinchot has raised, it is evident Mrs. Pinchot was referring to her husband when she said near the conclusion of her address:

New Issues Unpopular

"The man who raises new issues has always been distasteful to politicians. He musses up what has been tidily arranged. But unhappily for timid leaders the real forces of the country do not stand still. We cannot expect to meet our problems with a few inherited ideas—uncritical assumptions and foggy vocabulary—and routine philosophy.

"Political parties, systems, institutions and machines are mechanical contrivances valuable only when they serve the purposes of mankind—valueless whe nthey cease to do so.

'Society must have new institutions to fit new wants. All the rigid conservatives can do is to make the transition more difficult—the change more violent. Revolutions may be charged up to the stupidity of Statesmen. It is because of their insistence upon "stand pat" methods that we have our civil wars, the revolutions in Russia.

"Every liberal movement has had to fight again and again against the leadership that builds for material success rather than for the life of the spirit."

Tom Sims SAYS—

Here's sport news. Big conference in Europe. Several nations will try to run the human race.

They are ready for the peace meeting. One country has decided to double her airplane program.

Once the Chinese were the most truthful people on earth, but they have started playing golf.

Somebody hit the ex kaiser's wife with a rock. Cops are puzzled. Maybe she talked about the neighbors.

Germany, poor Germany, her troubles increase. Here's the latest. Ex-Crown prince has returned.

News from Mexico. They want warm baths. The Mexicans are used to being kept in hot water.

Scientist finds an eastbound ship weighs more. This is only natural. Full bottles are heavier.

Some men are so inconsiderate. In Chicago, a woman shot her husband for getting the floor dirty.

Interest is lower than usual in Cincinnati where they have a contest to find the prettiest feet.

Many a man keeps his nose to the grindstone so his wife can turn hers up at the neighbors.

Can't Stop Joint-Ease

"You can't stop people from buying Joint-Ease for sore throat and cold in chest," writes one of our druggist friends. "They say it's the best ever."

We know that, of course, but please remember that Joint Ease is for stiff swollen, painful joints, whether rheumatic or not, and its tremendous sale for that purpose proves that it is the one joint remedy that gets the most satisfying results.

A tube costs 60 cents at druggists everywhere. Just rub it on and in a few seconds it disappears completely under the skin, and relief follows instantly.

Seasoning Wood.
A process for seasoning wood which gives results in 20 days which would naturally take several years, is said to have been invented in France and consists of subjugating the wood to the action of a current of air containing ozone.

Whale Can't Breathe Under Water.
The whale who, because he lives in the water, is often supposed to be a member of the fish family, is in reality no more one than is a human being. He is in reality an animal very much like a cow or a horse, and his flesh is real animal flesh, nothing whatever like that of a fish. And like all other mammals, he cannot remain under water without an occasional trip to the surface.

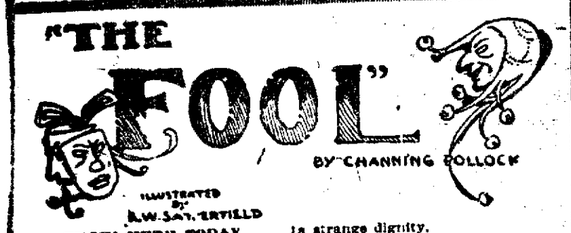

The Other One.
Altruism is a game two must play at, and it must be played cheerfully. You must not try to be altruistic all the time, you must take your turn being the other. It is your duty to make him happy, and it is equally his duty to make you happy. You must give him the opportunity. If you renounced the "miserable aims that end with self," it is praiseworthy in him to do the same. Encourage him to have worthy aims that end in you.—Samuel McChord Crothers in "Among Friends."

Baby's Diet.
Baby conferences throughout the country uniformly disclose the fact that malnutrition is the most common ailment among the small children. This condition results not so much from poverty as from a bad choice of diet

Too Familiar.

"THE FOOL"

BY CHANNING POLLOCK

ILLUSTRATED BY H.W. SAN. ERFIELD

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Clare Jewett, in love with the [illegible] Daniel Gilchrist, marries [illegible] Goodkind for his money. [illegible] is dismissed from the [illegible]nable Church of the Nativity [illegible] New York because of his radical [illegible]. Gilchrist is sent to the [illegible] mines by Goodkind senior and [illegible] that a big strike is settled. [illegible] delegation of strikers comes [illegible] to interview the president and [illegible] directors. They meet in Jerry's [illegible]. The three strikers, meeting [illegible] three cheerfully groomed men in evening clothes in the pretentious library of the man of wealth, feel disturbed by the surroundings. Clare is angry because her dinner party is interrupted.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

There was none of this uncertainty about Umanski. He stood with arms folded just a step within the room. A giant Pole, he was, with massive frame. It was a frame that would have carried ample weight, but it did not. Whatever might have been there had been starved off. He was all bone and brawn. His face was tense and earnest—something about it suggested a grim kind of poetry that had been born of suffering.

"You said you be on sidewalk," he said, turning to Stedtman. Max smiled fiercely and waved a hand darkly.

"I really just got in myself," he suggested nervously. "This is Mr. Goodkind, the president. And a couple o' directors. Well, now we can get down to business."

Goodkind had bowed at the introduction. Then, picking up a flashy humidor, he advanced to the three.

"Smoke?" he queried amiably but abruptly. He held the humidor before Hennig, who helped himself with an air of suspicion. Stedtman mumbled over boldly and took a cigar, Goodkind moved on to Umanski with the humidor. As he held it out the Pole stared past him and made no move. Goodkind looked at him strangely and returned the box to the table.

Hennig, feeling a little more important with a big cigar in his mouth, broke the ground of discussion.

"I guess you know all about our grievances," he blustered with an air of significance.

"I didn't know you had any," returned Goodkind suavely.

"You didn't know we had any—" Joe didn't understand the employers' approach.

"Ah, you fellows are never satisfied," Benfield broke in warmly.

"You're getting plenty for what you do," Goodkind followed up. "What are you complaining about? You've left good jobs to follow a lot of idle, discontented agitators. We've got to win this fight on principle. The work is there. I pay what I can get men for, and not a cent more. Take it or leave it."

"We got to hang together to get anything," retorted Joe.

"You're hanging—and what have you got?" Goodkind had centered on Hennig, but it was Umanski who answered. Still standing quietly with arms folded, his voice was as unemotional as his pose.

"I work twelve hours—every day—thirty years—got nothing," he said hesitantly.

"Why should you have," broke in Benfield. "An untrained man—"

Jerry had been surveying the proceedings scornfully. He broke his silence now, sneeringly.

"You don't even know English," he said derisively.

"How I gonna learn English—work 12 hours a day?" Umanski's query was pathetically earnest.

"Nobody asked you to take the job," Jerry flung. "Nobody asked you to come over here. You're not an American."

Umanski straightened quickly at this last remark.

"I was an American," he said with a strange dignity.

"When?" sneered Jerry.

"When I fight in the war."

Goodkind senior had turned to Umanski now.

"What do you want?" he asked, interested.

"I wanna chance to learn," replied the stark figure, "and a chance to live. I wanna chance to see—sun."

"Your son?" asked Goodkind, mistaking the word.

"God's sun," replied Umanski. "I never see him. Go to mines—him not up. Work in mines—him not see. Go home—him gone. Got baby five years ago. Never see him. Go to mines—him not up. Come back—him sleep. Go one day—him gone."

"Dead?" Goodkind's face took on gravity.

"My wife say: 'Good.' Not such many to feed."

Hennig, easily swayed, had caught something of Umanski's note of protest.

"It ain't fair," he whined.

Jerry, apparently uninterested, drew out his cigaret case, a lavishly engraved affair, and took out a cigaret. Suddenly Umanski lost his stoicism and, unfolding his long strong arms, crossed with rapid strides to the younger Goodkind's side.

UMANSKI STRETCHED TWO TREMBLING HANDS TOWARD HER.

"That little box—" he shouted. "What you pay for him?" He pointed to the cigaret case. Jerry, anticipating, turned his back on the burning eyes of the man, not deigning to answer. "I know," said Umanski. "Gold. You pay more for him than I got for swing pick thirty years. Me and six families—we live in one house you own. We got one room upstairs, two down cellar. Sleep there. Eat—cook—wash—upstairs. See nothing but brick yard and clothes hang up to dry. Wife—she carry water from yard. Me—I carry potato peeling out front. Him rot if I don't like that, I quit—and starve."

"You want to live on Fifth avenue," said Jerry disgustedly.

"If I don't like, other mans will," continued Umanski, unmindful. "Other mans take my job. I got little girl twenty years old. Awful nice little girl. Got gold hair. Got blue eyes. Her take sick. She sorry she's sick."

His eyes went far away—looking back perhaps to two cellar rooms and a yard with clothes hung up to dry, and beyond that into the dank darkness of a mine.

"She wanna go church. She ask me: 'Pop, buy me pretty new dress for church. Buy me pretty pink dress. Where I get him? We hire doctor once and he say: 'Air—sunshine—milk—eggs? Got no job. My little girl, she cough—and cough—and one night she die."

He straightened now to his full height.

"I tell you we git right to quit," he said feverishly. "We got right to hang together. We got right to fight—to live—and, by God, we gonna fight—we gonna live—we gonna—by God."

There came a sudden blare of music and ripples of laughter as the door to the music room opened and Dilly Gilliam burst in upon the tense peroration of this creature hounded by memories.

"Now look here, Jerry, you're not going to—" Dilly began. Then she saw that she had interrupted. "I'm sorry," she said haltingly.

Umanski stood looking at her. She was 20! She had gold hair! She had blue eyes! She had a pink dress!

Umanski stretched two trembling arms toward her, then brought them back to cover his face. Haunted and helpless he sank into a chair.

CHAPTER X
A Substitute

A HEAVY pall descended upon the room. Somehow, all felt the grim tragedy that phantom figures had re-enacted in this man's soul. Stedtman swayed a moment between two loyalties and then walked to the chair in which Umanski huddled, bowed and quaking, and put an arm around the man. Goodkind took a step nearer and looked down at the broken figure sympathetically.

Jerry alone seemed not to mind.

"You'll have to wait, Dilly," he said to the girl with still a trace of his petulance in his tone.

"Ask the ladies to stay in the drawing room," the elder Goodkind said. "We'll join them in a few minutes."

Dilly did not fathom it all, but she had a feeling that somehow she was to blame.

"Yes—certainly," she said nervously. "I'm so sorry." And she was gone.

Umanski heard the closing door and looked after her. Stedtman, his arm still around the man, signaled Goodkind to go on.

"I think we'd better let this go for tonight," the president said, shaking his head at Stedtman.

Umanski was on his feet in an instant.

"No," he said, half-apologetically. "Me—I'm all right. Excuse."

"You're a little upset," said Goodkind soothingly, "and I have guests. Besides, Gilchrist will be here in half an hour and I want to talk to him before I say anything definite. Suppose we meet here tomorrow at noon."

Hennig had stirred at the mention of Gilchrist's name.

"Not Gilchrist," he protested churlishly.

"No, just we six," assented Goodkind "—and maybe one or two more of our directors."

"All right," said Stedtman, seeing it was his business to agree.

Umanski had assumed his firm, stoical position again.

"I wanna know what we gonna do—tonight," he said emphatically.

"We're going to get together," said Goodkind with a confident smile. "You fellows have got the wrong idea. We're not tyrants or monsters. We're Christians and we want to act like Christians. Only—we've got to live, too. We've got to have the things we're used to, just as you have. But I think I can promise if the strike's called off, you men will be kept, and put back just where you were. Ring the bell, Jerry."

Jerry pressed a button beneath the table. Benfield excused himself and rejoined the other guests. Umanski stood there with his eyes still on Goodkind. The president shifted a bit, then turned to Hennig, attempting to free himself of the Pole's gaze.

"You live in Black River?" he asked by way of making conversation.

"Yes," said Joe, flattered at the attention.

"Married?"

"You betcha." Hennig answered with a flare of pride. "Prettiest girl in West Virginia. Been married a year. Got her in the five and ten."

Curwensville's Own Column

Today, Armistice Day, was not celebrated very elaborately in Curwensville. Having been made a legal holiday, it should have been observed as such. The only attraction was a game of football between the C. H. S. team and one hailing from Juniata. In the evening a banquet will be held at the Park house by members of Joshua Sipes Post, American Legion. Most of the fellows who had a day off spent it in the woods hunting.

Will S. Greer received a telegram Saturday evening announcing the sudden death of his brother-in-law, Dr. J. M. Cooper, at Pittsburg. Mr. Greer left for Pittsburgh Sunday afternoon. Dr. and Mrs. Cooper visited in Curwensville only a few weeks ago.

William Buck is nursing his right hand very carefully on account of it being slightly affected by an attack of blood poisoning. Two children are just recovering from similar attacks.

The Curwensville High School football team feel very grateful to the Clearfield football squad for the receipt of some forty complimentary tickets of admission to the game played at the county seat on Saturday. Some eighty Curwensville lovers of the game were inattendance and witnessed the Centre county battlers lose out gracefully but in bitter disappointment. Those who witnessed the struggle tell us that it was some game and well worth the time spent in witnessing it. Clearfield comes to Curwensville on Thanksgiving, the last game of the season in which the C. H. S. will contest.

John Kratzer, youngest son of Captain Kratzer, has been in Curwensville several days visiting his father. John is a linotype operator of considerable ability, and has been working on daily papers in Michigan.

Mrs. Herbert Sharp, who spent some months with her daughter, Mrs. Verne Wall on South Walnut street, has gone to Philadelphia, where she will make her home with her two daughters, the Misses Irene and Margaret Sharp.

Mrs. Betty Maurey and daughter spent the week-end with relatives and friends in Grampian.

John Welsh left Curwensville Saturday for Gettysburg to attend the funeral of a nephew, who passed away the latter part of last week.

Elias Backer, an aged gentleman residing over on South Side, is reported as being seriously ill. Mr. Backer for a number of years, was the foreman of the beam shop at the P. H. & L. tannery.

David Fleming returned home today from a four days sojourn over at Alexandria, Huntingdon county.

Mrs. Harry Wilbur was called to Curwensville last Friday from her home in Youngstown, O., on account of the serious illness of her mother, Mrs. Charles A. Rorabaugh. writing, however, Mrs. Rorabaugh is said to be improving.

Mrs. Ellen Cole, High street, was summoned to Philipsburg last Friday on receiving word of the death of a nephew, William Whiten. The remains were buried on Saturday.

Mrs. Herbert Orr, residing at the east end of Meadow street, met with a distressing accident on Saturday night by which her left leg was broken below the knee. She was going in a hallway to her bedroom, made a misstep and fell down the stairs. Dr. Erhard was summoned and reduced the fracture.

Mrs. Anthony Bellamore was operated on at Clearfield hospital last Thursday, having her tonsils removed. She is recovering nicely.

George Cole, a former resident, now employed in the Pennsylvania railroad shops at Altoona, spent Sunday with relatives. He has been in the shops for more than twenty years.

PRESBYTERIAN CHUDCH

Yesterday being the fifth anniversary of the signing of the armistice, the services were of a patriotic nature. The theme of the morning sermon reminded us of our duty and responsibility toward the cause of right as individuals and as a nation.

"God Saving You," the subject of the evening sermon, was the third in the series on "God and You." John 3:16 was the keynote of the sermon. "For God so loved the world that He gave His begotten son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting light."

Wednesday the mid week service of prayer and praise at 7:30 p. m.

Thursday the missionary luncheon at 1 p. m. Every woman of the church most cordially invited and urged to be present.

James Hartle, Miss Jane Verbout and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Maurer and two sons of Kylertown motored to Lock Haven and Will emsport on Sunday to spend the day with their daughter and sister Erda, who is a student at Lock Haven Normal.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Norris left yesterday for Washington, D. C., where they will visit friends for several days.

W. C. T. U. MEETING FRIDAY EVENING A PLEASANT EVENT

A regular meeting of the W. C. T. U. was held at the home of Mrs. Chorpenning, Friday evening. After opening by the president and the transaction of business, the evening was devoted to the hearing of reports of national and Pennsylvania state conventions by Miss LaRue Chorpenning. She first told of the national convention at Colummbus, Ohio, held in the magnificent building, a memorial in honor of the soldiers of the civil war, erected by our neighboring state, and which, because of the size of its auditorium, holding 5,000 is the mecca for all conventions.

Both the national and state conventions, the latter at Erie, the conventions were honored by the presence and addresses of their chief executive, the Governor. Great enthusiasm was created not only by their addresses, but by their leading the parade, the "March of Allegiance," which feature caused much interest in the cities of Columbus and Erie, being composed of about 5,000 white-robed women, marching through the streets of the two cities, with all traffic stopped for the time

The pulpits of the two cities, as usual, were filled on Sunday by members of the W. C. T. U.

A large and excellent photo taken at Columbus, which of course contains the world's president, Miss Anna A. Gordon, was shown and admired by the members.

After a social time during which refreshments were served, the meeting adjourned.

Mr. and Mrs. William Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Parck Meredith and Mrs. John Hassen of Lewistown motored here Sunday in their car and spent the day at the home of W. E. Philips as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Cole.

Protest Against Washing Ears.

The recent stories in the Companion about the difficulties that mothers have had in persuading their children to have their ears washed has led a contributor to tell what happened when her small boy was asked whether he should prefer to go to a picture show or to a concert. The boy really wanted to go to the concert, but he chose the picture show instead. When asked why, he said that going to a dark room would make washing his ears unnecessary.—Youth's Companion.

Future Sale Assured.

Wild to Go Out.

"I understand the audience went wild when you got up to speak." "Yes. For a time I was afraid some of them would be crushed to death in the exits."

Loosen Up That Cold With Musterole

Have Musterole handy when a cold starts. It has all of the advantages of grandmother's mustard plaster WITHOUT the blister. You just apply it with the fingers. First you feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then comes a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief.

Made of pure oil of mustard and other simple ingredients, Musterole is recommended by many nurses and doctors. Try Musterole for bronchitis, sore throat, stiff neck, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, croup, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back or joints, sore muscles, sprains, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest. It may prevent pneumonia and "flu."

To Mothers: Musterole is now made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

AN ECHO OF THE BATTLE

Clearfield, Pa., Nov 10, 1923

A CORRECTION

In last Monday's issue of the Clearfield Progress an article appeared regarding what happened in a certain Sunday School class Sunday morning The writer of this story apparently did the very thing he was censuring some one else for doing. He either published something about which he had been grossly misinformed or he exaggerated matters considerably for effect. He said the happening "almost created a riot." The fact is there was no argument, quarrel or contention in or about the Church.

To speak of almost creating a riot was unfair to our class and to the Church.

The teacher of this class repeated a story as it had been told her by one whom she believed responsible. As is usually the case with such a story, it gathered considerable moss before it reached the party who resented it. The unfortunate part is that some have been so eager to make so much of little.

Armistice Day Reflections

The civilized nations of the world are united in thought on this day. Their hearts are flooded with recollections of the Great War—The War that astounded and horrified civilized peoples! And as their sympathy reaches out to their lost manhood, their spirits vibrate again with those steadfast ideals, Justice, Peace and Liberty, that ever will lead nations to victory because they remain true to the divine guiding powers.

WILSON STATEMENT IS FATAL TO PEACE SAYS MR. PEPPER

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 12.—The utterances of Woodrow Wilson at this time may mean keeping the United States out of the World Court by rousing the animosities of those whose support otherwise may have been won, Senator George Wharton Pepper declared today.

"Five years ago the common weal for peace might have been conserved had we raised an international structure upon a foundation of a conference without committments. Under President Wilson's leadership, the structure was built upon the quicksand of covenated force," Senator Pepper said.

WALTON EXPECTS TO BE IMPEACHED BUT WILL FIGHT KLAN

Oklahoma City, Okla, Nov. 12.—"The fight will go on."

Seated in the modestly furnished living room of the executive mansion, Governor Jack Walton of Oklahoma City today pledged his future to war on the Ku Klux Klan, regardless of the outcome of the impeachment proceedings brought against him before the State Senate.

The suspended Governor expects to be impeached. His Counsel, however, may carry the issue to the United States Supreme Court

Already, although the House Board of Managers, acting as the prosecution, has completed its evidence in only two of the twenty-two counts being against him. But, Governor talks of the possibilities of the Senate court being against him. But, Governor or not, Walton says he will carry on the fight he has started against the Invisible Empire.

The hearing continued today with testimony of witnesses regarding Walton's purchase of his present home, and may drag out for a number of weeks. It was believed, however, that it will end abruptly. Once the prosecution satisfied itself that it has created sufficient weight of evidence against the deposed Governors, it can rest on any number of counts. The defense then has its turn before the vote of the Senate is taken. Twenty eight of the forty-two votes in the Senate are required for impeachment.

LOCAL BOYS PUT UP A GREAT BATTLE AND WIN FROM THE BURG

P. H. S. bowed to C. H. S. Saturday, acknowledging a clean cut 25 to 7 defeat.

The locals found considerable trouble in getting under way, but making flashing spurts which usually netted a tally or forced the alien eleven back to their own 10-yard line, Clearfield's green machine out-gained and outfought the visitors during the entire game. Clearfield backs continually launched attacks which rushed the big Centre county line off its feet and forced them to give ground the whole game. Clearfield slowed up a little in the third period and the visitors, quick to take advantage of this, found a weakness in the attack until Capt Jones finally tallied for Philipsburg.

The burgers were unable to stop the smashing line thrusts of Dale and Norris, while Barnie, Wilson and Mitcheltree continually flanked the visitors' line for long runs. Philipsburg backs found considerable trouble in denting the locals' line, yet Bratton, the visitor star quarterback, skirted ends and dived tackles for gains. Dale, a second string fullback, thrilled the crowd by his playing late in the fourth period when he grabbed a burg pass batted down by Barnie and sprinted 33 yards to the Philipsburg goal line.

The locals then unleashed a flashy attack and soon sent Mitcheltree over on a short line buck. Barnie was unable to boot the ball for the extra point. His punting during the game was extra good, but his placement kicks and dropkicks failed.

In the second period Clearfield uncorked a series of plays and soon netted another score when Capt. Barnie crossed. The try for point was no good when Barnie's kick went low Cleanfield started the second half with Barnie at the helm. Baily directed the Centre county team in Bratton's absence. The visitors netted a touchdown by the work of Trumble in the third period, Capt. Jones going around end for the score. He then added their last point by a nice dropkick. Clearfield got two more tallies in the last period when Mitch and Dale each scored.

Bratton and Ratowsky showed up well for the visitors, while Wilson and Dale featured Clearfield's attack, Wilson making several runs of 33, 32 and

Washington, Nov. 10.—Woodrow Wilson, addressing the American people, directly tonight for the first time since he left the White House, declared America's attitude after the World War was "deeply ignoble, cowardly and dishonorable."

France and Italy, Mr. Wilson also declared in a discussion of world affairs, have made "waste paper of the treaty of Versailles."

The former President said the only way in which the United States could show its true appreciation of the significance of Armistice Day, was by resolving to put self-interest away and to formulate and act upon the highest ideals of international policy.

Mr. Wilson spoke exactly five minutes into a radio instrument at his home here and his message was broadcasted to every section of the country.

Deplores Selfish Isolation.

"The anniversary of Armistice Day," he said, "should stir us to great exaltation of spirit because of the proud recollection that it was our day, a day above those early days of that never-to-be-forgotten November, which lifted the world to the high levels of vision and achievement upon which the great war for democracy and right was fought and won, although the stimulating memories of that happy time of triumph are forever marred and embittered for us by the shameful fact that when the victory was won—won, be it remembered, chiefly by the indomitable spirit and valiant sacrifices of our own inconquerable soldiers—we turned our backs upon our associates and refused to bear any responsible part in the administration of peace, or the firm and permanent establishment of the results of the war—won at so terrible a cost of life and treasure—and withdrew into a sullen and selfish isolation which is deeply ignoble because manifestly cowardly and dishonor-

MANY AUTO ACCIDENTS OVER WEEK END

Edward A. Bigleman Who Lives On Woodland Road In Critical Condition; Struck by Automobile

Was Waiting To Step Aboard Jitney When a Car Driven by Woodland Man Struck Him.

MAN STRUCK HERE

This community was the scene of quite a bunch of automobile accidents and near accidents Saturday evening and early Sunday morning.

The most serious of the lot occurred about 6 o'clock Saturday evening on the Woodland-Clearfield State road, just beyond the top of Barrett hill. The victim was Edward Bigleman, aged 35 years, who resides on the right hand side of the State road at the point mentioned

Mr. Bigleman had come out of his home and was standing along the roadway waiting to flag one of the Fullington jitneys for the purpose of coming to town, when Richard Rogers, who conducts the hotel at Woodland and traveling from Clearfield towards Woodland, came dashing along in a Buick car and ran right into him Mr Bigelman noticed the car coming but thought it would pass him by until just before reaching him it appeared to swerve toward him and though he was able to escape the bumpers of the rapidly traveling car, was struck a terrific blow

The injured man was taken into his home in front of which the accident occurred and a call sent out for physicians and the ambulance of the Clearfield Hospital. Mr. Bigleman was removed to the hospital, where his physician, Dr. Lovar F. Stewart found he was suffering from serious internal injuries and injuries and contusions to the head and body

At noon today Mr Bigleman was holding his own very nicely but his condition is very critical

Fred Hooverman Arrested

Later on Third Story

Along about 11:45 o'clock Saturday night Fred or "Fritz" Hooverman who is employed about the Paige Hotel and also conducts a "shine parlor" at McLaughlin's barber shop while attempting to cross Third street at the corner of Reed, was struck by the car driven by L. L. Graham who was on his way to his home in the Fourth Ward.

A car was parked alongside the Paige Hotel and Mr Hooverman stepped out from behind this car directly in the path of Mr Graham's car. The driver made every effort to avoid hitting Hooverman swinging his car into Reed street and running up over the curb and across the sidewalk, fetching up against the front porch of the Daugherty residence on the corner and wrecking one end of the porch.

Hooverman was struck a glancing blow as the machine swerved into Reed street and was skidded across the brick and landed with his head against the curb on the opposite side. The ambulance was summoned and Fritz was taken to the Clearfield Hospital where it was found that beyond a rather severe scalp wound and some bruises he was alright and will be able to be about in a day or two.

Bowled Over Fire Plug

At Third and Market Sts.

The fire plug at the corner of Third and Market streets, which has served as a shield for the Woolworth, now the Johnston building, and saved the lives of pedestrians and bystanders at this corner several times in the past, again gave up its life and its pretty "yeller" beauty a little of dulled.

About 1:40 o'clock Sunday morning light sleepers in that section were aroused from their slumbers by an awful crash, while the unintermediations of flying pieces of iron bouncing here and there over the concrete sidewalk led them to believe every safe in the neighborhood had been blown up by yeggs.

However, early arrivals at the scene discovered that only one measly fire plug had gone to pieces in the

DUBOIS BOY DIES AS RESULT OF PUTTING KEROSENE ON FIRE

Albert Zimmerman aged nine years died on Sunday morning at 12:15 o'clock in the DuBois Hospital, the result of an accident at the Zimmerman home shortly after nine o'clock on Saturday evening. The father of the boy was at work and no one was in the house, except the lad, at the time of the accident. Albert had been outside, and when he came in saw that the fire was low, and in order to heat the room, he poured kerosine oil on the fire. There was about a pint of oil in the can, and the flames leaped into the receptacle. An explosion followed and the can bursted, flames caping over the lad. He was badly burned about the face and body, but ran across the street to a neighbor, where his condition was seen to be serious. He was taken to the DuBois Hospital and died at the above stated time. He is survived by his father, five sisters and one brother. The lad was taken to the Quinn morgue, following death, and will be taken to his home today. Funeral services will be held this afternoon in the St. Joseph church and interment will be made in the St. Joseph cemetery.

IS NOW 80 YEARS YOUNG

We inadvertantly neglected to mention the fact that our old friend ex-Sheriff James Mahaffey celebrated his arrival one day last week, at the four score mile post on life's journey and is now 80 years young. The genial ex-sheriff enters the home stretch feeling like a "quarter horse" and bids fair to remain in the race for many years to come, and that he may be privileged to do so is the wish of his legion of friends throughout this section of Pennsylvania.

YES, WE HAVE NO BANANAS.

Neither did we have any fire. When the fire whistles and sirens let loose at eleven o'clock today a lot of fellows forgot the war ended five years ago today at that hour and started to hunt the fire.

Most of them are awake now.

FINE WEATHER IS RESPONSIBLE FOR WHISPERED REPLY TO R. C. ROLL CALL

Owing to the fine weather yesterday the Red Cross Roll Call canvassers found a great many people away from home when they called at the houses. The results secured were therefore considerably less than hoped for and less than was obtained last year.

There are undoubtedly many people who desire to join and in order that everyone may have an opportunity, the committee in charge has decided to make it known that subscriptions will be received at any of the three banks this week.

The work of the Red Cross is too valuable a factor in the community to be allowed to fail. If for any reason you were not seen by the solicitors yesterday remember that your contribution is needed and will be gladly received by the committee through any of the banks.

SMALL ARMY TO BE IN HUNTING TOGS ON THIS FINE DAY

Due to the fact that this a general holiday, it is expected that the bunnies and pheasants will suffer a terrible slaughter. Nearly everyone who is able to tote a gun had made arrangements to take to the woods, and it is expected that the killing will be heavy.

The hunting should be good at the present time, as it has been dry for the past two or three days. During the real wet weather of last week, few hunters were out and the animals and birds enjoyed a breathing spell, but any species of the woods that is now in season will be lucky to get through today.

The hunting thus far has been below the average of former years, notwithstanding that it was claimed that birds and rabbits were much more plentiful.

STUNT FLYER KILLED WHEN HIS AIRPLANE NOSE DIVES TO EARTH

Chicago, Nov. 11.—Lieutenant Benjamin McBride, 26, of Selfride Field, Mt. Clemens, Michigan, was killed during an Armistice Day air meet at Asburn flying field here today when his pursuit plane, flying about 135 miles per hour, plunged into the ground from a height of about 15 feet.

Lieutenant McBride was flying low over the field, while thousands watched, thrilling the spectators with the stunt known as "jazzing the clouds."

While flying only 15 or 20 feet from the ground he tried to rise but instead the plane plunged into the ground. The lieutenant was removed from the wreckage and started for a hospital but died on the way.

NATIONAL COMMANDER AT SCRANTON

Wilkes Barre, Pa., Nov. 12.—Wyoming Valley welcomed John R. Quinn, newly elected National Commander of the American Legion as the highlight of the Armistice Day celebration in this section today.

Following a reception and parade in his honor, Quinn will go to Scranton to attend a banquet this evening. Several officers of the army and marine corps accompanied the Legion chief.

NOTICE LEGION MEN

Do not forget the big time at the Dimeling Ball Room this evening at eight o'clock. Come whether you sent in your cards or not. There will be a place for you. We know you forgot to send in the card.

TWO MORE LOSE LICENSE

The State Highway Department on Saturday last gave out a list of 128 automobile drivers whose license to drive a machine in Pennsylvania had been taken from them.

Among the number appeared the names of two Clearfield county men, Anthony Luke, of Morrisdale, and H. C. Mooney, of Grampian.

More should lose them.

JOHN WOODS KILLS BLACK BEAR WHICH WEIGHS OVER 200

John Woods of the firm of Woods Bros., who make Keystone ice cream, slipped down the river to the vicinity of Birch Island the latter part of last week, ostensibly for the purpose of bird hunting, and came back on Friday evening with a fine specimen of black bear. There were five in the party but John assures us that he was all alone when he spied Bruin, or Bruin spied him, we hardly know which is correct, but at any rate, two well directed shots at close to three hundred yards brought the big brute to the ground, one of the shots entering the neck and the other the rib back of the shoulder.

The bear is a beautiful specimen weighing 210 pounds, and has a beautiful coat of fur. It has been on display at the People's Meat Market, where it drew large crowds all Saturday evening. John is envied by all the hunters now as it is not often that a bear comes to this town.

BRUTALITY TO WIFE BRINGS A QUICK TRIP TO CO. JAIL TO SERVE DESERVED SENTENCE

John, better known as "Pammy Kline, who, according to the police, knocked his wife unconscious with a bottle at their home in the Lobel flats Friday night last and then threw a bucket of water on the poor woman to bring her to, continuing to abuse and upbraid the poor unfortunate woman after she regained consciousness, was taken before Judge Bell by Chief of Police McMullen Saturday and was sent down to jail.

Kline, who entered a plea of guilty to violation of the liquor law several months ago, was at liberty on a suspended sentence. Neighbors say he has been abusing his wife shamefully at times and that the jail is the proper place for him.

SANBORN SHEIK IS PAROLED AND TOLD TO SIN NO MORE

David Phillips, the alleged Sanborn sheik, who got himself into a peck of trouble, also Tom Lowell's jail, because of lack of respect for the 18th Amendment and his inability to make the ladies quit loving him, was paroled for the remainder of his jail sentence by Judge Bell Friday.

Phillips was sentenced in May last to pay a fine of $400 and costs and serve twelve months in jail for violation of the liquor law and because he neglected to keep a date made with the court and district attorney for sentence.

His parole now is conditioned on his moving his family out of Clearfield county, living a blameless life for the coming three years, and paying the fine and costs within the next fifteen months.

America's Game Birds Fast Disappearing Despite Millions Spent for Protection

"America's effort to preserve its game bird supply has proved a failure," declares T. Gilbert Pearson, president of the National Association of Audubon Societies, New York. "Many species are decreasing in numbers with such rapidity that undoubtedly they are as much in peril as have the antelope and the bison."

Lack of proper public sentiment, Mr. Pearson charges, is primarily responsible for disappearance of the wild turkey which once ranged the country, the popular ruffed grouse, the cheery bob-white which bird lovers are seeking everywhere to protect, the prairie chicken, the many species of shore birds, and other game birds.

"The far-ringing platitude, 'this is a free country,' has had disastrous effects on our supply of wild life," writes Mr. Pearson in an article printed in The World's Work. "Our legislatures have declared and our supreme courts have upheld the declaration that the birds and game are public owned and that they do not become private property until reduced to possession.

"Millions of dollars have been spent and are being expended in employing game wardens, developing and maintaining game farms, making moving pictures, giving lectures and engaging in general propaganda for game protection. All this is thought necessary because the people of the country, especially the six million gunners who went afield last year, are not willing to deny themselves the recreational and gastronomic pleasures to be derived from transferring the game birds from live public ownership to dead private ownership.

Better Protection in Europe.

"In many parts of Europe the game birds native to those countries exist in such numbers as to astonish an American who for the first time becomes personally acquainted with conditions that there exist. The protection of game in [illegible] is based on fundafor permission to make his lands a 'bird sanctuary.' Thus under our system game birds rarely are a source of income to the land owners on which they are found. Agricultural interests are already deprived very largely of the valuable service rendered by these birds, in destroying grasshoppers, beetles, and other injurious insects.

A National Issue.

"Wild fowl appear to be holding their numbers better than many of our other American game birds, but with the constant draining of marshes, the increasing number of our hunting population, and the great facilities for transportation coupled with effectiveness of modern fire arms, one cannot speak with assurance of their future.

"After twenty years of daily experience in the field of bird protection, it is the opinion of the writer that the only possible chance of bringing back our injured game birds and insuring the future of the bob-white and the water-fowl is by the establishment of numerous bird sanctuaries and by inaugurating an intensive campaign of education in which the economic and sentimental values of the birds shall be insistently stressed.

"This campaign must be carried on by scientific and public spirited societies, institutions, and organizations of every character, by the scientific and especially the popular literary magazines, and by the daily and weekly press. At the present time such work is left almost entirely to one Government Bureau, some state departments of conservation, a handful of societies and a comparatively few individuals. It must be made a national issue.

"If we as a nation do not move in this way, the game is going to continue its course of rapidly diminishing until game species are gone forever. Can we always buy farmers into policy and have flying game birds become private and not public property? If so, maybe this will suit them."

mad ... of the flying autoist and after looking over the fragments all returned to "the hay."

The commotion was caused by Harry McGarry, of New Millport, who attempted to make the turn from Market into Third street in his Nash car and found the fire plug confronting him when he fain would straighten away into Third street. The fire plug was smashed off even with the brick walk, pieces of the iron being shot down Third street for forty feet, while one or two fragments smashed some of the glass in the door of the Workman's meat market on the corner. A deluge was avoided only because the water pipe was bent over instead of being broken off.

Near Accident at Pennsy Station.

Saturday evening while a crowd of people were standing on the platform at the Pennsy station awaiting the arrival of the 6 28 train, a motorist apparently in an awful hurry, in attempting to turn from Third street into Reed street cut off too short and ran his car up onto the sidewalk. He was on the walk with all four wheels and narrowly missed the mail box near the curb as he rolled back onto the street.

Collision On Daisy Street

Sunday Afternoon

About 4 o'clock as Frank Boyle, of East End, was coming up Daisy street, a car being driven toward Philipsburg banged into him in front of Baroni's store and badly crippled a rear fender for him. The driver of the car told Mr. Boyle his name was W. N. Dutra, of Philipsburg, a traveling salesman who had been stopping at the Leonard House for a few days.

"This must always be a source of deep mortification to us, and we shall inevitably be forced by the moral obligations of freedom and honor to retrieve that fatal error and assume once more the role of courage, self-respect and helpfulness which every true American must wish to believe to be our true part in the affairs of the world.

Treaty Made Waste Paper.

"That we should thus have done a great wrong to civilization, and at one of the most critical turning points in the history of mankind, is the more to be deplored, because every anxious year that has followed has made the exceeding need for such service as we might have rendered more and more manifest and more pressing, as demoralizing circumstances which we might have controlled have gone from bad to worse until now—as if to furnish a sort of sinister climax—France and Italy between them have made waste paper of the Treaty of Versailles, and the whole field of international relationships is in perilous confusion.

"The affairs of the world can be set straight only by the firmest and most determined exhibition of the will to lead and make right prevail.

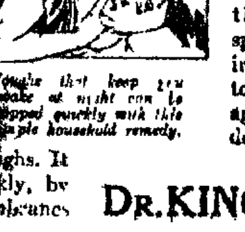

"Happily, the present situation of affairs in the world affords us an opportunity to retrieve the past and to render to mankind the incomparable service of proving that there is at least one great and powerful nation which can put aside programs of self-interest, and devote itself to practicing and establishing the highest ideals of disinterested service, and the constant maintenance of exalted standards of conscience and of right.

"The only way in which we can nificanee of Armistice Day is by renificance of Armistic eDay is by resolving to put self-interest away and once more formulate and act upon the highest ideals and purposes of international policy. Thus, and only thus, can we return to the true traditions of America."

CELEBRATED 76TH BIRTHDAY

Mrs. A. B. Leavy, a life-long and highly respected resident of Clearfield, celebrated the 76th anniversary of her birth with a family dinner party at her home on South Second street yesterday. All her children and grandchildren were present and the day was very much enjoyed by all.

Pay no attention to forecasts of mild winter, snow bird or predictions of weather conditions for long periods in the future, in advance of the Weather Bureau at Washington

A prediction from New England that the "coming winter will be the coldest and snowiest winter in history" in that section of the country has led the government officials to disclaim many responsibility for the forecast. The Weather Bureau does not attempt to issue predictions even of a general character for weeks or months in advance. The subject of forecasting for seasons or considerable periods ahead has long engaged the attention of meteorological scientists, but thus far, weather experts say, no laws of sequence have been discovered whereby long-range forecasts of a reliable character can be made.

Reputable scientists throughout the world agree that the science has not advanced to the point where that can be done. Thus the government experts throw down the predictions of "goose bone weather prophets" and the forecasts which appear in almanacs and calendars a year in advance.

We wonder at the scarcity of small game reported in this section thus far this season. Still it is not to be wondered at. The records in County Treasurer Rumberger's office show that more than 12,000 hunters were licensed in Clearfield county last year, while the total for 1923 passed the 11,000 mark on Saturday last. Then, too, the automobile and improved roads have made Clearfield county game covers easily available to half the population of the state.

TRINITY CHURCH EVENTS

Bible school took a very definite advance Sunday, which was not only in attendance—from 384 to 461, and in offering from $19.74 to $25.65, but more especially in the devotion to the study period. Junior League had unusual interesting exercises in telling Bible stories and reviewing Christ's life. Annabel Walther gave a pleasing account of the story of Abraham and Lot.

The morning congregation exceeded greatly the attendance of last Sunday's, especially so in the number of out-of-town visitors. The exposition was from Amos 5-4 "Seeking God." The Armistice Day meditation was an appeal to highly resolve against war and to decry the glorification of war. In the evening, Isaiah 1:6-9 furnished the Scripture for a study of the side extent of the Gospel and the changes it must effect and has been producing in life and the world.

The vocal music in both services touched a high point. In chorus selection, solo by Mrs. Stouffer and quartette appropriateness of theme was combined with excellence of rendition. The chorus was filled up and strongly balanced.

Rev. Joseph E. Gearhart, who held a goodly service at Mount Zion in the afternoon, participated throughout the day in shool and worship exercises.

Deserts Not Without Water.

The vast stretches lying between the Sierra Nevada and California and the eastern Cordilleran ranges (Rocky mountains) in the United States, and between the Pacific ocean and the eastern Sierra Madre of Mexico, constitute the great American desert, is superficially waterless. Its plains are usually barren of surface water save for an occasional saline lagoon. Notwithstanding the apparent scarcity of water, one of the most remarkable features of the great American desert is that water has been secured often in apparently impossible places and in quantities that have made possible the existence of cities and industries, says the Detroit News.

Progress.

Progress in human history has been based on the destruction of barriers. If this science has found a way to span the seas and bridge the continents, philosophy has made plains of thought on which men of every race may meet together in harmony of faith and purpose.—Walter B. Young.

Vigorous Old Age

WHY separate youth and old age with a deep and ever-widening abyss?

The bloom of youth and the hardy, ruddy glow of Old Age—sixteen and seventy—should be separated only by the span of years and not by varying differences of physical wholesomeness.

There's no old age in within the grasp of all. S S S brings that hale and hearty feeling back with a rush. Rich red blood is the greatest enemy of weakening, health undermining Old Age. S S S builds Red Blood Cells. Rich, red blood coursing through your veins sweeps away impurities that retard the proper functioning of your system. Old Age—once a dreaded agony becomes a vigorous, enjoyable, care free time of life.

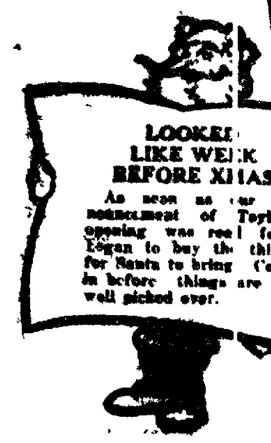

S S S is made of carefully selected herbs and barks—scientifically prepared and proportioned. Welcome Old Age when it comes. Be ready to withstand the attacks of diseases that harbor in its wake. Meet Old Age with a hearty handshake. A handshake that is full of well being and vigorous blood making, red blooded content. S S S is your best friend when Old Age is seen heading the corner. Get a bottle and drive care and worry away. All leading drug stores carry it. The large size is the more economical.

DAVID BRINGS HOME THE BACON!

OUR TRADE WITH EUROPE AND WITH THE WORLD

Manufactures form a steadily increasing percentage of our exports especially to the non-European world.

September trade of the United States with Europe and with the world as a whole shows gratifying gains and this is especially true in the figures of our commerce with Europe. The September imports from that continent exceed by over $4,000,000 those of the same month of last year, and the exports thereto are $37,000,000 in excess of those of September, 1922. The imports from that continent show an increase of about 5% in dollar value and the exports thereto are 22% greater than those of September of the preceding year. Merchandise sent to that grand division in September form 53% of the total exports as against 52.6% in September of last year and 50% in the twelve months ending with September 1923.

Europe which needs our foodstuffs and raw manufacturing material has always been says the Trade Record of The National City Bank of New York our biggest customer, though the share of the total exports sent to other grand divisions has steadily increased with the growth in our exports of manufactures, which are especially in demand in the non-European world. Prior to 1900 Europe took from 75 to 80 per cent of our total exports while all other parts of the world took from 20 to 25 per cent.

With the enormous increase in our exports of manufactures, which jumped from $485,000,000 in 1900 to $1,732,000,000 in the calendar year 1922, it is quite natural that the per cent of the exports sent to the non-manufacturing world should show an increase and the share sent to manufacturing Europe a corresponding decrease. So it turns out that the share of our total exports which went to North America other than the United States was in the calendar year 1922 24% against 13½% in the fiscal year 1900, to South America about 6% against less than 3%, to Asia 12% against less than 5% in 1900. As a consequence of this increase in the exports of manufactures it is quite natural that the percentage which manufacturing Europe took of our total exports should show a decline and thus the share of our 1922 exports sent to Europe stood at 54% in 1922 against 60% in the fiscal year 1913, though the total value of merchandise sent to that continent in 1922 was far in excess of that of 1913, standing in dollar values at $2,083,000,000 in 1922 against $1,479,000,000 in 1913.

The big growth in our exports of manufactures which has changed the percentage of our exports to the various grand divisions, adds the Trade Record, can only be fully appreciated when we compare the totals of the current year with those of the pre-war period. The latest figures of our exports by great groups of articles indicate that the value of manufactures exported in the calendar year 1923 will exceed $2,000,000,000 against $1,100,000,000 in the year immediately preceding the war, $475,000,000 in 1900, $188,000,000 in 1890, and $122,000,000 in 1880, when Europe was taking 86% of our total exports and the balance of the world only 14%.

With the big stocks of manufacturers which we are able to offer to purchasers abroad, the non-manufacturing world now takes 45% of our total exports against 14% in 1880 when we began the enlargement of our production of manufactures for the export trade. Manufactures form from 75 to 90 per cent of our exports to the non-manufacturing countries, while manufacturing material and foodstuffs form the bulk of the exports to manufacturing Europe.

Progress Editorial For Women

A LETTER A WEEK
By FLORENCE DAVIES

Perhaps because he is a man of few words, people call President Coolidge cold and aloof.

But those who know him well remind us that words may be only chatter.

For instance, a veteran political reporter writing of him in a November magazine says: "It is right to set down this fact, that Calvin Coolidge wrote to his step mother personal letters, not less than once a week, always.—Since his step-mother's death (1920) he has written, not less often, personal letters to his father. It is right to add this; the two Coolidge boys, by their father's teaching and example, write not less than once a week to their grandfather."

This evidence is offered to prove that underneath the President's seeming aloofness, there is a great depth of affection and loyalty.

But the story means something for itself. It means that President Coolidge believes there are some things in life which count, some things which are fundamental and which one must attend to; some things for which one always has time in spite of being Governor or Vice-President or President of the United States ;and one of these things is a man's family.

It is easy enough to take the other side of the argument. It is easy to call a family a nuisance, to point out that it interferes with one's freedom; that it is often difficult and temperamental ,and often annoys by its excess of zeal in directing us how to order our affairs.

But all these things are mere pin pricks. They have nothing to do with the fact that a man's family belongs to him and he to them, and that, willy nilly, like it or not, he is bone of their bone, flesh of their flesh and that common loyalty demands that he regard their interests as his own and cling to the ideals and traditions for which they have stood.

People who neglect things which are essentially their own are shallow people who live in a shallow world, never develop enough reality or depth to take root in deep soil. They aren't very real.

President Coolidge isn't that kind of a man. He may be president of the most powerful nation in the world, but he isn't too busy to write to his father. His sons are not too much obsessed with football or movies or school entertainments to get acquainted with their grandfather and then to keep that friendship alive. In the days to come that grandfather is going to mean something more to those boys than an empty name. He is going to be a living personality who has become a part of their lives. Most of us think we are too busy for these softer things. "Now that John has such a big job, (John probably having been promoted to be superintendent of a button factory,) he can't be expected to write letters home, he leaves all that for the women folks." That is the way we explain it. But John with his button factory isn't any busier than President Coolidge. And all the buttons in the world aren't quite as important as happy memories and close associations with those we love. Suppose we check up by the "letter home" test and see who is the more cold and indifferent, our New England President of few words or some of us who have time to chatter with everyone but no time for the things that we count all down the years.

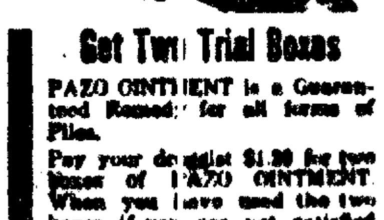

The Spider

We gave some perfunctory admiration to the landscape, which is in most only beautiful to those who admire land, and to them perhaps the most beautiful in England. For here is the body of the great chalk spider who straddles over our island—whose legs are the south downs and the north downs and the chilterns, and the tips of whose four poles out at Cromer and Dover. He is a clean creature, who grows as few trees as he can, and those few in tidy clumps, and he loves to be tickled by quickly flowing streams. He is pimpled all over with earthworks, for from the beginning of time men have fought for the privilege of standing on him, and the oldest of our temples is built upon his back.—E. M. Forster, in "The Celestial Omnibus."

THE FLAG: HOW TO DISPLAY IT HOW TO RESPECT IT

ON Flag Day, June 14th, representatives of 68 organizations met in Washington for a conference called and conducted under the auspices of The A[illegible] Legion to draft an authentic code of flag etiquette. [illegible] code drafted by that conference is printed on this [illegible] following pages together with diagrams illustrat[illegible] of the rules. While the rules adopted by t[illegible] have no official government sanction, neverthele[ss] t[illegible] sent the authoritative opinion of the principal pat[illegible] [illegible] of the United States and of Army and Navy [illegible] [illegible] are [illegible] ding on all of the organizations which took part [in the] gathering. The conference constituted itself a [illegible] [illegible] so that modifications in the rules can be made [illegible] desirable. The rules as given below are [illegible] [illegible] draft of the code as brought out at the [illegible] Legion post will find the rules and diagrams [illegible] calling to the notice of school pupils and citizens [generally].

THERE are certain fundamental rules of heraldry which, if understood generally, would indicate the proper method of displaying the flag. The matter becomes a very simple one if it is kept in mind that the National Flag represents the living country and is itself considered as a living thing. The union of the flag is the honor point; the right arm is the sword arm, and therefore the point of danger and hence the place of honor.

1. The Flag should be displayed only from sunrise to sunset, or between such hours as may be designated by proper authority. It should be displayed on national and state holidays and on historic and special occasion. The Flag should always be hoisted briskly and lowered slowly and ceremoniously.

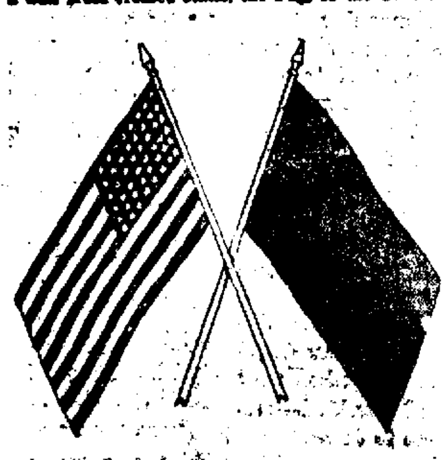

2. When carried in a procession with another flag or flags, the Flag of the United States should be either on the marching right, i.e., the Flag's own right, or when there is a line of other flags the Flag of the United States may be in front of the center of that line.

3. When displayed with another flag against a wall from crossed staffs, the Flag of the United States should be on the right, the Flag's own right, and its staff should be in front of the staff of the other flag.

4. When a number of flags are grouped and displayed from staffs, the Flag of the United States should be in the center or at the highest point of the group. (See diagram, top next column.)

5. When flags of States or cities or pennants of societies are flown on the same halyard with the Flag of the United States, the National Flag [illegible] it should [illegible] [illegible] in unveiling a statue or monument [the] Flag should not be allowed to fall to [the ground but] should be carried aloft to wave

[illegible] at half staff, the Flag is first [hoisted to the] peak and then lowered to the [half staff] position, but before lowering the Flag [for the] day it is raised again to the peak. On

Memorial Day, May 30th, the Flag is displayed at half staff from sunrise until noon and at full staff from noon until sunset, for the Nation lives [and] the Flag is the symbol of the living Nation.

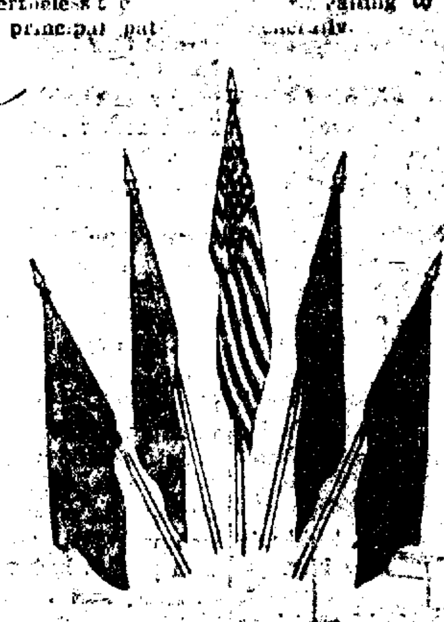

[illegible] used to cover a casket the Flag [should] be placed [so th]at the union [is at] the head and [over] the left shoulder. The Flag should not be lowered into the grave nor allowed to touch the ground. The casket should be carried [illegible]

[When t]he Flag is displayed in church it [should be from a] staff placed on the congregation's right as they face the clergyman. The should always be at the peak. When flown from adjacent staffs the Flag of the United States should be hoisted first. No flag or pennant should be placed above or to the right of the Flag of the United States.

6. When flags of two or more nations are displayed they should be flown from separate staffs of the same height and the flags should be of approximately equal size. (International usage forbids the display of the flag of one nation above that of another nation in time of peace.)

7. When the Flag is displayed from a staff projecting horizontally or at an angle from the window sill, balcony or front of building, the union of the Flag should go clear to the head of the staff unless the Flag is at half mast.

[8.] When the Flag of the United States is displayed in a manner other than by being flown from a staff it should be displayed flat, whether indoors or out. When displayed [illegible] service flag, the state flag, or other flag should be at the left of the congregation. If in the chancel, the Flag of the United States should be placed on the clergyman's right as he faces the congregation and other flags on his left.

15. When the Flag is in such a condition that it is no longer a fitting emblem for display it should not be cast aside or used in any way that might be viewed as disrespectful to the national colors, but should be destroyed as a whole, privately, preferably by burning or by some other method in harmony with the reverence and respect we owe to the emblem representing our country.

CAUTIONS

1. Do not permit disrespect to be shown to the Flag of the United States.

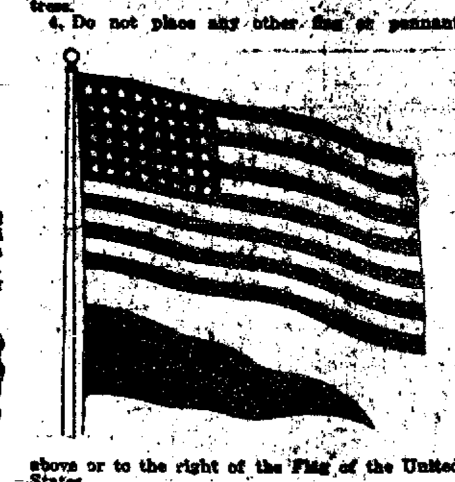

2. Do not dip the Flag of the United States to any person or any thing. The regimental color, state flag, organization or institutional flag will render this honor.

3. Do not display the Flag of the United States

with the union down except as a signal of distress.

4. Do not place any other flag or pennant

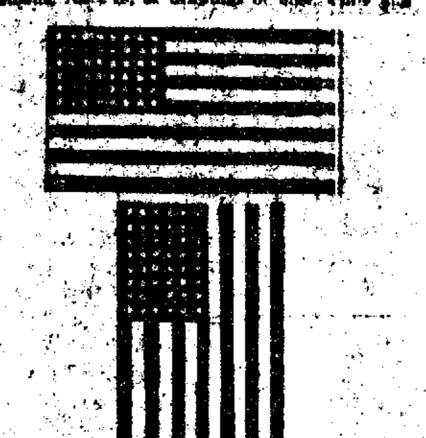

above or to the right of the Flag of the United States.

5. Do not let the Flag of the United States touch the ground or trail in the water.

6. Do not place any object or emblem of any kind on or above the Flag of the United States.

7. Do not use the Flag as drapery in any form whatever. Use bunting of blue, white and red.

either horizontally or vertically against a wall, the union should be uppermost and to the flag's own right, i.e., to the observer's left. When displayed in a window it should be displayed the same way, that is, with the union or blue field to the left of the observer in the street. When festoons, rosettes, or drapings of blue, white and red are desired, bunting should be used, but never the Flag.

9. When displayed over the middle of the street, as between buildings, the Flag of the United States should be suspended vertically with the union to the north in an east-and-west street or to the east in a north-and-south street.

10. When used on a speaker's platform, the Flag should be displayed above and behind the speaker. It should never be used to cover the speaker's desk nor to drape over the front of

8. Do not fasten the Flag in such manner as will permit it to be easily torn.

9. Do not drape the Flag over the hood, top, sides or back of a vehicle, or of a railroad train or boat. When the Flag is displayed on a motor car, the staff should be affixed firmly to the chassis or clamped to the radiator cap.

10. Do not display the Flag on a float in a parade except from a staff.

11. Do not use the Flag as a covering for a ceiling.

12. Do not use the Flag as a portion of a costume or of an athletic uniform. Do not embroider it upon cushions or handkerchiefs or print it on paper napkins or boxes.

13. Do not put lettering of any kind upon the Flag.

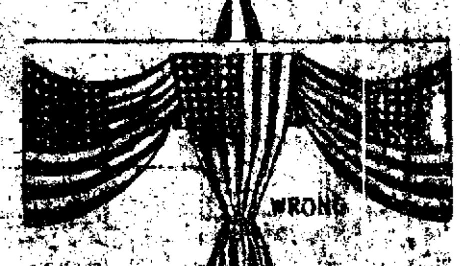

14. Do not use the Flag in any form of advertising nor fasten an advertising sign to a pole from which the Flag of the United States is flying.

15. Do not display, use or store the Flag in such a manner as will permit it to be easily soiled or damaged.

PROPER USE OF BUNTING

BUNTING of the national colors should be used for covering a speaker's desk, draping over the front of a platform and for decoration

in general. Bunting should be arranged with the blue above, the white in the middle and the red below.

SALUTE TO THE FLAG

DURING the ceremony of hoisting or lowering the Flag or when the Flag is passing in a parade or in a review, all persons present should face the Flag, stand at attention and salute. Those present in uniform should give the right-hand salute. When not in uniform, men should remove the headdress with the right hand and hold it at the left shoulder. Women should salute by placing the right hand over the heart. The salute to the Flag in the moving column is rendered at the moment the Flag passes.

When the National Anthem is played those present in uniform should salute at the first note of the anthem, retaining this position until the last note of the anthem. When not in uniform, men should remove the headdress and hold it as in the salute to the Flag. Women should render the salute as to the Flag. When there is no Flag displayed, all should face toward the music.

MRS. PINCHOT SAYS WOMEN PUT GIFFORD WHERE HE IS TODAY

New York, Nov. 10.—Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, addressing the meeting of the League for Political Education at Town Hall today, declared that without the aid of the women voters of Pennsylvania the old Republican organization of Penrose could never have been unseated. It was the defeat of the machine, she said, which brought about new conditions and incidentally made her husband chief executive.

"The women of Pennsylvania had a very real share in the political upheaval of that State—an upheaval which annihilated at one blow the power of a machine that had hitherto been considered absolutely impregnable.

"'Clean House at Harrisburg,' was the slogan—and, as a battle cry (however short of romance and chivalry it may have been) it at least had the merit of rallying together the force of righteousness. Without the women, victory would have been impossible. We have plenty of facts to prove that statement, at any rate. They came out in great numbers with the utmost courage and determination.

'Indeed, in one or two counties in the very beginning when the fight looked utterly hopeless, the women started the ball rolling and for the first few weeks kept at it nearly single-handed. In all cases eventually, however, men and women worked side by side. There were no woman's committes as such. I am already insisting upon this point, because I think it is of the utmost importance.

Women's Vote Big Factor

"In Pennsylvania today the women are a real factor in the political life of the State—more so, perhaps, than in any other States—unless we except New Jersey. They have had the courage and the skill to know what they wanted in political life; they have demonstrated their capacity for leadership; they have known how to unite moral fervor with political skill—a very rare combination and one which I can assure you is literally irresistible.

"The primary victory last spring marked a definite step forward in women's political activities. Women outside of the State have turned to Pennsylvania with keen interest and amazement because they saw actually happening there what many of us had always contended, namely, that a definite contribution could be made by women who were willing to go inside the party and work and fight there for the things that woman want.

"Hitherto, in other States, the women who had affiliated themselves with parties had, to a certain extent at least, lost the fine edge of their leadership. They had tended to be swamped by the very size and weight of the machine of which they were a part—content to "go along" without attempting any definite or effective fight for the principles in which they believe, and which they were in politics to put over.

In view of the questions relating to politics and public life Governor Pinchot has raised, it is evident Mrs. Pinchot was referring to her husband when she said near the conclusion of her address:

New Issues Unpopular

"The man who raises new issues has always been distasteful to politicians. He musses up what has been tidily arranged. But unhappily for timid leaders the real forces of the country do not stand still. We cannot expect to meet our problems with a few inherited ideas—uncritical assumptions and foggy vocabulary—and routine philosophy.

"Political parties, systems, institutions and machines are mechanical contrivances valuable only when they serve the purposes of mankind—valueless whe nthey cease to do so.

'Society must have new institutions to fit new wants. All the rigid conservatives can do is to make the transition more difficult—the change more violent. Revolutions may be charged up to the stupidity of Statesmen. It is because of their insistence upon "stand pat" methods that we have our civil wars, the revolutions in Russia.

"Every liberal movement has had to fight again and again against the leadership that builds for material success rather than for the life of the spirit."

Tom Sims SAYS—

Here's sport news. Big conference in Europe. Several nations will try to run the human race.

They are ready for the peace meeting. One country has decided to double her airplane program.

Once the Chinese were the most truthful people on earth, but they have started playing golf.

Somebody hit the ex kaiser's wife with a rock. Cops are puzzled. Maybe she talked about the neighbors.

Germany, poor Germany, her troubles increase. Here's the latest. Ex-Crown prince has returned.

News from Mexico. They want warm baths. The Mexicans are used to being kept in hot water.

Scientist finds an eastbound ship weighs more. This is only natural. Full bottles are heavier.

Some men are so inconsiderate. In Chicago, a woman shot her husband for getting the floor dirty.

Interest is lower than usual in Cincinnati where they have a contest to find the prettiest feet.

Many a man keeps his nose to the grindstone so his wife can turn hers up at the neighbors.

Can't Stop Joint-Ease

"You can't stop people from buying Joint-Ease for sore throat and cold in chest," writes one of our druggist friends. "They say it's the best ever."

We know that, of course, but please remember that Joint Ease is for stiff swollen, painful joints, whether rheumatic or not, and its tremendous sale for that purpose proves that it is the one joint remedy that gets the most satisfying results.

A tube costs 60 cents at druggists everywhere. Just rub it on and in a few seconds it disappears completely under the skin, and relief follows instantly.

Whale Can't Breathe Under Water.

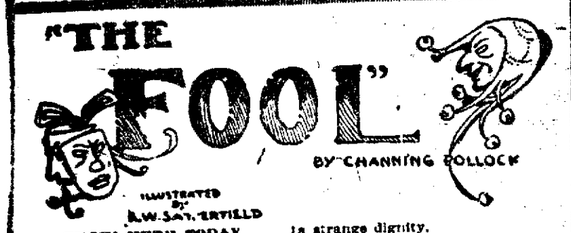

The whale who, because he lives in the water, is often supposed to be a member of the fish family, is in reality no more one than is a human being. He is in reality an animal very much like a cow or a horse, and his flesh is real animal flesh, nothing whatever like that of a fish. And like all other mammals, he cannot remain under water without an occasional trip to the surface.

The Other One.

Altruism is a game two must play at, and it must be played cheerfully. You must not try to be altruistic all the time, you must take your turn being the other. It is your duty to make him happy, and it is equally his duty to make you happy. You must give him the opportunity. If you renounced the "miserable aims that end with self," it is praiseworthy in him to do the same. Encourage him to have worthy aims that end in you.—Samuel McChord Crothers in "Among Friends."

"THE FOOL"

BY CHANNING POLLOCK

ILLUSTRATED BY H.W. SAN. ERFIELD

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Clare Jewett, in love with the [illegible] Daniel Gilchrist, marries [illegible] Goodkind for his money. [illegible] is dismissed from the fashionable Church of the Nativity in New York because of his radical sermons. Gilchrist is sent to the coal mines by Goodkind senior and when that a big strike is settled. A delegation of strikers comes north to interview the president and directors. They meet in Jerry's home. The three strikers, meeting three cheerfully groomed men in evening clothes in the pretentious library of the man of wealth, feel disarmed by the surroundings. Clare is angry because her dinner party is interrupted.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

There was none of this uncertainty about Umanski. He stood with arms folded just a step within the room. A giant Pole, he was, with massive frame. It was a frame that would have carried ample weight, but it did not. Whatever might have been there had been starved off. He was all bone and brawn. His face was tense and earnest—something about it suggested a grim kind of poetry that had been born of suffering.

"You said you be on sidewalk," he said, turning to Stedtman. Max smiled fiercely and waved a hand darkly.

"I really just got in myself," he suggested nervously. "This is Mr. Goodkind, the president. And a couple o' directors. Well, now we can get down to business."

Goodkind had bowed at the introduction. Then, picking up a flashy humidor, he advanced to the three.

"Smoke?" he queried amiably but abruptly. He held the humidor before Hennig, who helped himself with an air of suspicion. Stedtman pushed over boldly and took a cigar. Goodkind moved on to Umanski with the humidor. As he held it out the Pole stared past him and made no move. Goodkind looked at him strangely and returned the box to the table.

Hennig, feeling a little more important with a big cigar in his mouth, broke the ground of discussion.

"I guess you know all about our grievances," he blustered with an air of significance.

"I didn't know you had any," returned Goodkind suavely.

"You didn't know we had any—" Joe didn't understand the employers' approach.

"Ah, you fellows are never satisfied," Benfield broke in warmly.

"You're getting plenty for what you do," Goodkind followed up. "What are you complaining about? You've left good jobs to follow a lot of life discontented agitators. We've got to win this fight on principle. The work is there. I pay what I can get men for, and not a cent more. Take it or leave it."

"We got to hang together to get anything," retorted Joe.

"You're hanging—and what have you got?" Goodkind had centered on Hennig, but it was Umanski who answered. Still standing quietly with arms folded, his voice was as unemotional as his pose.

"I work twelve hours—every day—thirty years—got nothing," he said hesitantly.

"Why should you have," broke in Benfield. "An untrained man—"

Jerry had been surveying the proceedings scornfully. He broke his silence now, sneeringly.

"You don't even know English," he said derisively.

"How I gonna learn English—work 12 hours a day?" Umanski's query was pathetically earnest.

"Nobody asked you to take the job," Jerry flung. "Nobody asked you to come over here. You're not an American."

Umanski straightened quickly at this last remark.

"I was an American," he said with a strange dignity.

"When?" sneered Jerry.

"When I fight in the war."

Goodkind senior had turned to Umanski now.

"What do you want?" he asked, interested.

"I wanna chance to learn," replied the stark figure, "and a chance to live. I wanna chance to see—sun."

"Your son?" asked Goodkind, mistaking the word.

"God's sun," replied Umanski. "I never see him. Go to mines—him not up. Work in mines—him not see. Go home—him gone. Got baby five years ago. Never see him. Go to mines—him not up. Come back—him sleep. Go one day—him gone."

"Dead?" Goodkind's face took on gravity.

"My wife say: 'Good.' Not such many to feed."

Hennig, easily swayed, had caught something of Umanski's note of protest.

"It ain't fair," he whined.

Jerry, apparently uninterested, drew out his cigaret case, a lavishly engraved affair, and took out a cigaret. Suddenly Umanski lost his stoicism and, unfolding his long strong arms, crossed with rapid strides to the younger Goodkind's side.

UMANSKI STRETCHED TWO TREMBLING HANDS TOWARD HER.

"That little box—" he shouted. "What you pay for him?" He pointed to the cigaret case. Jerry, anticipating, turned his back on the burning eyes of the man, not deigning to answer. "I know," said Umanski. "Gold. You pay more for him than I got for swing pick thirty years. Me and six families—we live in one house you own. We got one room upstairs, two down cellar. Sleep there. Eat—cook—wash—upstairs. See nothing but brick yard and clothes hang up to dry. Wife—she carry water from yard. Me—I carry potato peeling out front. Him rot if I don't like that, I quit—and starve."

"You want to live on Fifth avenue," said Jerry disgustedly.

"If I don't like, other mans will," continued Umanski, unmindful. "Other mans take my job. I got little girl twenty years old. Awful nice little girl. Got gold hair. Got blue eyes. Her take sick. She sorry she's sick."

His eyes went far away—looking back perhaps to two cellar rooms and a yard with clothes hung up to dry, and beyond that into the dank darkness of a mine.

"She wanna go church. She ask me: 'Pop, buy me pretty new dress for church. Buy me pretty pink dress. Where I get him? We hire doctor once and he say: 'Air—sunshine—milk—eggs? Got no job. My little girl, she cough—and cough—and one night she die."

He straightened now to his full height.

"I tell you we git right to quit," he said feverishly. "We got right to hang together. We got right to fight—to live—and, by God, we gonna fight—we gonna live—we gonna—by God."

There came a sudden blare of music and ripples of laughter as the door to the music room opened and Dilly Gilliam burst in upon the tense peroration of this creature hounded by memories.

"Now look here, Jerry, you're not going to—" Dilly began. Then she saw that she had interrupted. "I'm sorry," she said haltingly.

Umanski stood looking at her. She was 20! She had gold hair! She had blue eyes! She had a pink dress!

Umanski stretched two trembling arms toward her, then brought them back to cover his face. Haunted and helpless he sank into a chair.

CHAPTER X
A Substitute

A HEAVY pall descended upon the room. Somehow, all felt the grim tragedy that phantom figures had re-enacted in this man's soul. Stedtman swayed a moment between two loyalties and then walked to the chair in which Umanski huddled, bowed and quaking, and put an arm around the man. Goodkind took a step nearer and looked down at the broken figure sympathetically.

Jerry alone seemed not to mind.

"You'll have to wait, Dilly," he said to the girl with still a trace of his petulance in his tone.

"Ask the ladies to stay in the drawing room," the elder Goodkind said. "We'll join them in a few minutes."

Dilly did not fathom it all, but she had a feeling that somehow she was to blame.

"Yes—certainly," she said nervously. "I'm so sorry." And she was gone.

Umanski heard the closing door and looked after her. Stedtman, his arm still around the man, signaled Goodkind to go on.

"I think we'd better let this go for tonight," the president said, shaking his head at Stedtman.

Umanski was on his feet in an instant.

"No," he said, half-apologetically. "Me—I'm all right. Excuse."

"You're a little upset," said Goodkind soothingly, "and I have guests. Besides, Gilchrist will be here in half an hour and I want to talk to him before I say anything definite. Suppose we meet here tomorrow at noon."

Hennig had stirred at the mention of Gilchrist's name.

"Not Gilchrist," he protested churlishly.

"No, just we six," assented Goodkind "—and maybe one or two more of our directors."

"All right," said Stedtman, seeing it was his business to agree.

Umanski had assumed his firm, stoical position again.

"I wanna know what we gonna do—tonight," he said emphatically.

"We're going to get together," said Goodkind with a confident smile. "You fellows have got the wrong idea. We're not tyrants or monsters. We're Christians and we want to act like Christians. Only—we've got to live, too. We've got to have the things we're used to, just as you have. But I think I can promise if the strike's called off, you men will be kept, and put back just where you were. Ring the bell, Jerry."

Jerry pressed a button beneath the table. Benfield excused himself and rejoined the other guests. Umanski stood there with his eyes still on Goodkind. The president shifted a bit, then turned to Hennig, attempting to free himself of the Pole's gaze.

"You live in Black River?" he asked by way of making conversation.

"Yes," said Joe, flattered at the attention.

"Married?"

"You betcha." Hennig answered with a flare of pride. "Prettiest girl in West Virginia. Been married a year. Got her in the five and ten."

Curwensville's Own Column

Today, Armistice Day, was not celebrated very elaborately in Curwensville. Having been made a legal holiday, it should have been observed as such. The only attraction was a game of football between the C. H. S. team and one hailing from Juniata. In the evening a banquet will be held at the Park house by members of Joshua Sipes Post, American Legion. Most of the fellows who had a day off spent it in the woods hunting.

Will S. Greer received a telegram Saturday evening announcing the sudden death of his brother-in-law, Dr. J. M. Cooper, at Pittsburg. Mr. Greer left for Pittsburgh Sunday afternoon. Dr. and Mrs. Cooper visited in Curwensville only a few weeks ago.

William Buck is nursing his right hand very carefully on account of it being slightly affected by an attack of blood poisoning. Two children are just recovering from similar attacks.

The Curwensville High School football team feel very grateful to the Clearfield football squad for the receipt of some forty complimentary tickets of admission to the game played at the county seat on Saturday. Some eighty Curwensville lovers of the game were inattendance and witnessed the Centre county battlers lose out gracefully but in bitter disappointment. Those who witnessed the struggle tell us that it was some game and well worth the time spent in witnessing it. Clearfield comes to Curwensville on Thanksgiving, the last game of the season in which the C. H. S. will contest.

John Kratzer, youngest son of Captain Kratzer, has been in Curwensville several days visiting his father. John is a linotype operator of considerable ability, and has been working on daily papers in Michigan.

Mrs. Herbert Sharp, who spent some months with her daughter, Mrs. Verne Wall on South Walnut street, has gone to Philadelphia, where she will make her home with her two daughters, the Misses Irene and Margaret Sharp.

Mrs. Betty Maurey and daughter spent the week-end with relatives and friends in Grampian.

John Welsh left Curwensville Saturday for Gettysburg to attend the funeral of a nephew, who passed away the latter part of last week.

Elias Backer, an aged gentleman residing over on South Side, is reported as being seriously ill. Mr. Backer for a number of years, was the foreman of the beam shop at the P. H. & L. tannery.

David Fleming returned home today from a four days sojourn over at Alexandria, Huntingdon county.

Mrs. Harry Wilbur was called to Curwensville last Friday from her home in Youngstown, O., on account of the serious illness of her mother, Mrs. Charles A. Rorabaugh. writing, however, Mrs. Rorabaugh is said to be improving.

Mrs. Ellen Cole, High street, was summoned to Philipsburg last Friday on receiving word of the death of a nephew, William Whiten. The remains were buried on Saturday.

Mrs. Herbert Orr, residing at the east end of Meadow street, met with a distressing accident on Saturday night by which her left leg was broken below the knee. She was going in a hallway to her bedroom, made a misstep and fell down the stairs. Dr. Erhard was summoned and reduced the fracture.

Mrs. Anthony Bellamore was operated on at Clearfield hospital last Thursday, having her tonsils removed. She is recovering nicely.

George Cole, a former resident, now employed in the Pennsylvania railroad shops at Altoona, spent Sunday with relatives. He has been in the shops for more than twenty years.

PRESBYTERIAN CHUDCH

Yesterday being the fifth anniversary of the signing of the armistice, the services were of a patriotic nature. The theme of the morning sermon reminded us of our duty and responsibility toward the cause of right as individuals and as a nation.

"God Saving You," the subject of the evening sermon, was the third in the series on "God and You." John 3:16 was the keynote of the sermon. "For God so loved the world that He gave His begotten son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting light."

Each Man's Rights Limited.

Every man must work out his own salvation, but in doing so must recognize that millions of other men are doing the same thing and have rights as well as he. Therefore, what he does must not unnecessarily interfere with what they are doing.

Fifty-Fifty.

A woman is always ready to admit a man's superior intelligence if he will admit that she knows more than he does.

Seaweed Extracts.

Chinese doctors have been successful in curing certain skin diseases with extracts from seaweed. Experiments in this direction are now being carried out in Paris and other European cities.

Run No Risks.

There are all kinds of ways of being unpopular; one of the most effective is to get the habit of handing people long clippings with a request to read them.

Old Woodwork Made New.

A wood dye is a good finish for old woodwork. If the old finish is unsatisfactory and you do not wish to remove it a wood dye may be put over it. There are a number of different shades made. A final finish of an enamel makes the wood look as good as new.

Persian Rugs.

In Persia each tribe or family makes its rugs of a distinctive design, which is as much theirs as is the tartan of the Scotsman.

W. C. T. U. MEETING FRIDAY EVENING A PLEASANT EVENT

A regular meeting of the W. C. T. U. was held at the home of Mrs. Chorpenning, Friday evening. After opening by the president and the transaction of business, the evening was devoted to the hearing of reports of national and Pennsylvania state conventions by Miss LaRue Chorpenning. She first told of the national convention at Colummbus, Ohio, held in the magnificent building, a memorial in honor of the soldiers of the civil war, erected by our neighboring state, and which, because of the size of its auditorium, holding 5,000 is the mecca for all conventions.

Both the national and state conventions, the latter at Erie, the conventions were honored by the presence and addresses of their chief executive, the Governor. Great enthusiasm was created not only by their addresses, but by their leading the parade, the "March of Allegiance," which feature caused much interest in the cities of Columbus and Erie, being composed of about 5,000 white-robed women, marching through the streets of the two cities, with all traffic stopped for the time.

The pulpits of the two cities, as usual, were filled on Sunday by members of the W. C. T. U.

A large and excellent photo taken at Columbus, which of course contains the world's president, Miss Anna A. Gordon, was shown and admired by the members.

After a social time during which refreshments were served, the meeting adjourned.

Mr. and Mrs. William Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Parck Meredith and Mrs. John Hassen of Lewistown motored here Sunday in their car and spent the day at the home of W. E. Philips as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Cole.

Protest Against Washing Ears.

The recent stories in the Companion about the difficulties that mothers have had in persuading their children to have their ears washed has led a contributor to tell what happened when her small boy was asked whether he should prefer to go to a picture show or to a concert. The boy really wanted to go to the concert, but he chose the picture show instead. When asked why, he said that going to a dark room would make washing his ears unnecessary.—Youth's Companion.

Future Sale Assured.

A small boy looked longingly into a store window where a shining new bicycle was displayed. Shyly he entered and, approaching the proprietor, said: "If you'll keep that bicycle till I'm growed up to be a big man I'll buy it of you."

Wild to Go Out.

"I understand the audience went wild when you got up to speak." "Yes. For a time I was afraid some of them would be crushed to death in the exits."

AN ECHO OF THE BATTLE

Clearfield, Pa., Nov 10, 1923

A CORRECTION

In last Monday's issue of the Clearfield Progress an article appeared regarding what happened in a certain Sunday School class Sunday morning The writer of this story apparently did the very thing he was censuring some one else for doing. He either published something about which he had been grossly misinformed or he exaggerated matters considerably for effect. He said the happening "almost created a riot." The fact is there was no argument, quarrel or contention in or about the Church.

To speak of almost creating a riot was unfair to our class and to the Church.

The teacher of this class repeated a story as it had been told her by one whom she believed responsible. As is usually the case with such a story, it gathered considerable moss before it reached the party who resented it. The unfortunate part is that some have been so eager to make so much of little.

School Dresses

Here are new school frocks, easy to slip into, easy to be laundered, and practical in every line and seam and yet decidedly attractive as well. The frock with the pleated front has its pleats so placed that they will not easily come out—the back of the dress is plain. The peasant sleeves are sewn to a dropped shoulder. A new collar finishes the neck of the second dress.

Armistice Day Reflections

The civilized nations of the world are united in thought on this day. Their hearts are flooded with recollections of the Great War—The War that astounded and horrified civilized peoples! And as their sympathy reaches out to their lost manhood, their spirits vibrate again with those steadfast ideals, Justice, Peace and Liberty, that ever will lead nations to victory because they remain true to the divine guiding powers.

Loosen Up That Cold With Musterole

Have Musterole handy when a cold starts. It has all of the advantages of grandmother's mustard plaster WITHOUT the blister. You just apply it with the fingers. First you feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then comes a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief.

Made of pure oil of mustard and other simple ingredients, Musterole is recommended by many nurses and doctors. Try Musterole for bronchitis, sore throat, stiff neck, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, croup, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back or joints, sore muscles, sprains, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest. It may prevent pneumonia and "flu."

To Mothers: Musterole is now made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.
